Lightning Thrust

Vienna Outflanked By Russian Forces

By ROBERT MUSEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, April 2.—(BUP)—The Red Army today captured the Hungarian transport centre of Magykaniza, and Berlin said it had irreplacably flanked Vienna in a lightning thrust to Semmering, key mountain pass on the trunk railway 42 miles southwest of the Austrian capital.

A broadcast dispatch of the DNB News Agency reported the Soviet push to Semmering. It represented a gain of almost 25 miles from the advanced Red Army positions reported yesterday.

Semmering is in the most important mountain pass on the trunk railway and parallel highway from Vienna through Wiener Neustadt to Graz and Trieste. It is 23 miles southwest of Wiener Neustadt and 22 miles inside Austria.

Forward columns of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's forces were reported fighting in the Leitha mountains, only about a dozen miles from greater Vienna.

The Russians were reported sending armored columns ahead of their main body of troops to knife through the well-organized German defence system and turn it before the Nazis could brace themselves for a stand.

DISORDERS SPREAD

The Moscow radio reported that increasing disorders were spreading in Carinthia and Styria and also in Vienna itself.

Moscow dispatches said other Russian forces were storming Wiener Neustadt, Austria's most important industrial centre, and had pushed to within sight of Bratislava, capital of the German puppet state of Slovakia.

The London Daily Mail quoted unconfirmed German reports that 20 Russian divisions, possibly 450,000 men, had begun a massive assault on Stettin, Germany's biggest Baltic port, from points on the east bank of the Oder opposite the city.

At Convention

Minister Tells Teachers About Improvements

A modern teacher should strive toward teaching his pupils as individuals, to instil in them that individual quality which will develop his personality toward living as an individual and not as the subject of a dictatorship, Hon. R. Earl Ansley, provincial minister of education, told the Monday morning session of the 28th annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' Association in the Macdonald hotel.

The convention continues until Wednesday evening. Scores of interested teachers attending as individuals rather than as representatives of any division were present in addition to the accredited delegates.

The principal speaker in Monday morning's deliberations, Mr. Ansley discussed past improvements in the teaching profession in this province, together with the aims which he said would vastly improve the profession in the future.

Social Credit Board Report Blasts "Plans"

Plans for a ... International Security League, an International Stabilization Fund, an International Bank and United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association appear to be part of a great scheme to establish a world dictatorship under the domination of "a junta of international financiers", according to the Alberta Social Credit Board 1945 report, which has been tabled in the legislature.

Destruction of ... national sovereignty, individual freedom and democracy will result if the plans achieve their objective, the report declares.

The board report was tabled in the Legislature by Hon. C. E. Gerhart, minister of trade and industry, under whose jurisdiction the SC board functions. Board members are A. V. Bourque, MLA for Lac Ste. Anne, chairman; N. E. James, MLA for Edmonton, secretary; William Tomyn, MLA for Willingdon, and Floyd ... Baker, MLA for Clover Bar, ... ex-officio members.

The report submits a five-point plan "in the ... opposite direction" to the plans condemned, stating "the key for permanent peace can only be ... translated into reality

Bond Dealers Oppose Alberta Refunding Plan

TORONTO, April 2.—(CP)—The Investment Dealers Association of Canada has informed Premier Manning of Alberta that it must actively "oppose" your government's action in refusing to consider and explore with the bondholders the new circumstances which arise as a result "of a proposal of Finance Minister Ilsley for refunding of Alberta bonds now in default."

The premier's telegram, dated March 27, said Mr. Ilsley's proposal involved payment to the bondholders of more than $24,000,000 more than the amount provided in the refunding plan but forward by the Alberta government. It said that "I sincerely trust the Investment Dealers' Association will not be a party to active opposition to the government's proposal which has met with generally satisfactory reaction from the rank and file of the bondholders."

Byrnes Quits Post As War Mobilizer

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of James F. Byrnes as director of War Mobilization and Reconversion. He chose Fred M. Vinson to succeed him.

It was the second change in jobs for Mr. Vinson in less than a month. On March 6 he was nominated Federal Loan administrator. Prior to that date he was director of Economic Stabilization.

Mr. Byrnes submitted his resignation March 24, while preparing a report to President Roosevelt and Congress which outlined the plans he has developed for reconversion after Germany's collapse.

Mr. Roosevelt said it was with "heartfelt regret" that he had received Mr. Byrnes' resignation.

Swift Advance Across Island

Okinawa May Be Split in Two Hourly by U.S. Invasion Units

By FRANK TREMAINE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

GUAM, April 2.—(BUP)—American troops drove more than halfway across Okinawa today in a swift advance against scattered sniper and pillbox resistance. Front dispatches said an announcement that Okinawa had been split in two was expected hourly.

Hard fighting roared on the southern flank of the American Army-Marines' front where tanked infantrymen were driving toward Naha, the island's burning capital, less than seven miles distant.

Tokyo radio reported without Allied confirmation that Americans completed a new landing today on the island of Kume, 12 miles west of Okinawa, and 340 miles northeast of Formosa.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Tens of thousands of troops of the new American 10th Army landed along a wide beachhead, two airfields and more than a dozen villages were captured. Dispatches indicated U.S. planes soon would

Unless Hitler Quits

Nazi Troops May Decide If War To Be Continued

STOCKHOLM, April 2.—(AP)—The Stockholm Tidningen, in another report which observers here considered with reservations, said yesterday the German high command planned to advise the army's officers and troops that the decision whether to continue the war rested with them in the event Hitler's government failed to resign within 48 hours.

The story was attributed to a "member of the German officer opposition who is advised on what is happening at Berchtesgaden."

It followed Saturday's Tidningen article, unattributed as to source, which asserted the German high command had demanded that the Hitler government resign as a basis for taking up negotiations toward an armistice.

Yesterday's story said the "high command will renounce its command of the army" unless the Hitler government withdraws.

There was nothing from other quarters to support these reports.

The Brussels radio said Sunday that Hitler had called a conference of district leaders at Berchtesgaden. It added that the report that German generals had asked Hitler to make way for an armistice had not been confirmed.

Germans Showing Nervousness Along Two Italian Fronts

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

ROME, April 2—(BUP)—The Germans today were reported showing increasing signs of sensitivity along the Italian front, especially the section from southeast of Bologna to the Adriatic.

Front dispatches said the Nazis were keeping the eastern section of the Fifth Army front below Bologna illuminated with flares and at the same time maintaining steady patrols of the Eighth Army front in the western coastal sector.

Allied destroyers again were revealed to have bombarded German positions for the last week east of the Franco-Italian border, concentrating on transportation targets and a radio station.

Remnants of 21 Nazi Divisions Surrendering to 2 U.S. Armies

From AP and BUP Dispatches

PARIS, April 2.—While the remnants of 21 German army divisions trapped in the Ruhr basin by the United States 1st and 9th Armies were still surrendering, or in a few isolated cases trying to fight their way out, the Canadian 1st and British 2nd Armies plunged forward today in 15 and 20-mile advances which promised the speedy liberation of the whole of Holland, and the cutting off from Germany of the great North Sea ports of Bremen, Hamburg and Bremerhaven.

Liberation of Holland and the ... over-running of the V-bomb sites which have been used for the rocket bomb attacks on England since June last is only a matter of hours.

Armored vanguards of the British Second and Canadian First Armies were 74 miles southwest of Bremen, Germany's second port, and about the same distance south of the Dutch seacoast.

RESISTANCE BROKEN

German resistance was broken all along Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's broad British front and a swift dash to the coast that would complete the liberation appeared well under way.

Official reports said the British were in Munster and 15 miles beyond at an undisclosed point. Berlin spokesmen placed the Allies 36 miles farther east on both sides of Bielefeld, 180 miles from Berlin.

Remnants of the German 25th Army, possibly 50,000 strong, are racing eastward from the Dutch seacoast in disorderly flight to escape the fast-breaking drive of the Canadian and British armies which are plunging forward to cross their line of retreat. Huge columns of Nazi transport block the roads of escape, and although bad flying weather is aiding them, RCAF

Three Companies Will Consider Housing Loans

Announcement that applications for loans under the National Housing Act (1944) will be considered in Alberta was made Monday by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, the Mutual Life Assurance Company and the Great-West Life Assurance Company. While interest among prospective borrowers is keen, the actual volume of borrowing meanwhile will be limited by the shortages of material and labor.

It was pointed out that loans under the National Housing Act are based on appraisal standards formulated by the administration at Ottawa and not on the cost of construction as they exist today.

OTHERS TO FOLLOW

It is expected that other companies will follow in accepting applications for loans.

Premier Ernest Manning, contacted after announcement was made that the lending companies would begin operations under the NHA in Alberta, expressed satisfaction that the NHA loans would be made in this province.

"I am very glad that the companies will begin lending operations under the NHA in Alberta," the premier said.

Decision of the leading companies to enter Alberta for home-building under the NHA follows closely upon the legislature's action in passing the National Housing Loans Act (Alberta). This legislation was assented to last Thursday.

Tax Collections Set New Record

City tax collections for the period Jan. 1 to March 31, 1945 established an all time record when $1,967,788.94 was paid into the city treasury, compared with $1,764,407.61 for the same period last year, the previous all time high, an increase of $203,881.33, according to figures released Monday by Thomas Walker, city assessor.

Sales of city owned land during the 1944 three-month period also created an all time record with a total of $289,373. This is $130,301 above the sale for the three months of 1944 when sales totalled $159,112.

Land sales in March totalled $247,383 compared with $71,898 for the same month last year. The March, 1945 sales, created an all time record, being the third successive month in which such records have been shattered.

Rentals collected in the three months of 1945 were $24,185 compared with $39,650, a decrease of $5,465. Collections in March this year amounted to $13,590 compared with $13,084 in the same month last year.

Customs collections during March, 1945, totalled $459,324 compared with $435,608.80 for the same month last year, while the collections for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1945, were $6,678,306.06 compared with $6,428,059.29 for the year ended March 31, 1944, an increase of $150,250.77.

HOLLYWOOD, April 2.—The unions are picketing the Hollywood studios because of a jurisdictional dispute and it'll be settled as soon as they can find somebody in Hollywood who can pronounce it. If film production were stopped, it would really slow down the war effort. After all, how would Gen. Eisenhower know what to do next if he couldn't see those war pictures?

The strikers threw a mile-long picket line around one place and picketed it for two days. You should have seen how silly they felt when the band it was only the back of Edward Arnold's head. What a mob of pickets at Paramount! That's the biggest crowd I've seen in front of the place since I forgot to mail the monthly check to the actives. Nobody knows whether Bette Davis went out on strike or not. Anyway, she came down to the studio with a couple of nice five gal brother who's a whale of a union man. It isn't because he doesn't like to work, but he's been striking since Samuel Gompers was in rompers.

Carries Baby to Safety

Girl, Eight, Saves Children As Home Destroyed by Fire

Cool-headed action of eight-year-old Margaret Baker, 9633 103 avenue, who picked up her year-old baby sister and threw her three brothers out of their burning home, shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday, was commended by officers of the city police and fire departments. The fire, of unknown origin, broke out while the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Baker, were attending a show, and completely destroyed the home and all its contents.

The alarm was turned in by Peter J. Fedechko, next-door neighbor, who saw flames shooting from the roof of the dwelling, at 6:50 p.m., even as the children made their way to safety outside.

According to city police, the little girl and a brother noticed smoke coming from a clothes closet in the home almost simultaneously. Snatching the baby out of its crib, she led the way outside.

STOVE "AWFULLY HOT"

Margaret stated that her parents had gone to a theatre, leaving her in charge of the other children. She said she did not know how the fire started but said "the kitchen stove was awfully hot".

Exactly two hours after the damaged building had been left, city firemen were again called to the residence, where fire had broken out again in a corner of the roof.

By that time, Mr. and Mrs. Baker had returned from the show to discover their loss, saying that the house was a total loss with nothing saved beyond what the family was wearing.

Some money, amounting to $340 which Mr. Baker had placed under some papers and put beneath a mattress, was also lost; he said. The mattress had earlier been thrown out of the building, it was stated.

Three lines of hose was laid by hall No. 2 under the direction of District Chief Thomas Harvey.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker and the five children were given temporary quarters with the children's shelter about 11 p.m. that day.

SECOND HOME BURNED

Second blaze in which an Edmonton home was razed over the weekend, occurred about 6:06 a.m. Sunday, when the residence of O. F. McKenzie, 11712 129 street, was levelled.

Mr. McKenzie, a fireman at the U.S. airbase, told police he was on his way home about 6 a.m. when he observed flames pouring out of the front of the premises. He sent in an alarm from a nearby residence.

Cause of the blaze was undetermined, and because the nearest hydrant was about six blocks away, efforts of hose No. 2, 5 and 8 were confined to the use of booster lines only.

The building was of new construction, consisted four rooms, loss of which, together with the contents, was covered by insurance.

PROPERTY PROTECTED

Three booster lines of hose were used in the case of three was played on adjoining property to prevent it catching fire.

According to city police, numerous small blazes in the past week started in different sections of the city by youngsters playing with matches.

when thorough decentralization has taken place. Political and economic power must be restored to the people."

"This involves the dissolution of cartels, combines and monopolies, including the financial monopoly now controlled by a number of individuals.

PEACE REQUIREMENTS

Proposals toward permanent peace, enumerated by the SC board are as follows:

1. Having control of its economic system, each nation would establish its own money system designed to provide economic security and democratic freedom for its citizens.

2. Each nation having thus set its house in order would then seek to trade its real surplus of goods, on a basis of value for value, with other nations. There would be no longer any need for tariffs and embargoes. No nation would be driven to "blasting its way into foreign markets" in an attempt to secure foreign money to make up the lack of purchasing power at home. Ruthless economic war, the forerunner of military war, would then cease.

3. Local autonomy in money matters would automatically dissolve the international money monopoly. Monopolistic combines and cartels would likewise lose their power and the manipulation of foreign exchange would become impossible.

SEND CAPITAL GOODS

4. The wealthier nations would be inclined to lend surplus capital goods to backward countries to enable them to become productive and incidentally to enrich the creditor nation by making repayment of the loan in wanted goods.

5. Having removed the economic causes of war, it is difficult to imagine any other situation which would drive nations to fight nations on a global scale. It is possible that some minor local irritation might arise between two countries and develop into a minor conflict. Hundreds of minor disputes of that nature have arisen, but in most cases have been settled without resorting to military war. Such is usually the case when the disagreement is not economic in cause.

A voluntary association of nations to insure world peace is urged by the report, such an association to be in agreement on a further five points:

1. A country would be eligible to become a member of the association of nations, on condition that it undertook to operate an economy in which sufficient purchasing power was distributed to the people to enable them to buy the total national production. There must be no exception to this condition, which removes the economic cause of wars.

RESPECT SOVEREIGNTY

2. Every member nation would undertake to respect the sovereign integrity of every other nation.

3. A member nation would be permitted to provide capital goods for the development of backward countries under conditions which would enable them to repay advances in goods and services.

4. Member nations would agree to maintain armed forces which would be adequate to fulfil its responsibilities as a member of the association.

5. Member nations would amend their constitutions if necessary to provide that in the event of any unit of the armed forces of any nation crossed the boundary of another country, that nation would be deemed an aggressor and a state of war would automatically exist between that nation and the association of nations. After the suppression of the aggressor has been accomplished, members of the government, the armed forces, financiers, nations, the judiciary or any other individuals in positions of authority, who could be proven to have concurred in the act of aggression, by a competent tribunal, would be punished accordingly.

"It is understood the terms contained in section 5 would ever be invoked," the report states.

EMPIRE IS EXAMPLE

"The British Commonwealth illustrates the principle that to the extent decentralization of power takes place, voluntary co-operation develops. This principle can be applied to the building of a world association of nations, providing the economic barriers that now exist are removed. This is the way to world peace and individual security with freedom.

Okinawa May Be Split in Two At Early Hour

captured airdromes.

The Americans already were days ahead of schedule in their greatest invasion of the Pacific war.

A correspondent broadcasting from a Superfortress over Okinawa this morning said the invasion appeared to be continuing well despite some signs of resistance, though apparently nothing like that which had been anticipated.

GET REINFORCEMENTS

Reinforcements of men, tanks, guns and supplies were flowing across the beaches in a steady stream.

Warships ranging from new 45,000-ton battleships to "ocket-firing gunboats poured a steady drumfire of shells into the enemy defences ahead of the ground forces. Some 3,500 carrier planes also shuttled back and forth over the island.

A Japanese communique conceded that the Americans were continuing to reinforce the beachhead, but claimed that Japanese forces had intercepted the invader in "furious fighting".

The enemy communique also asserted that 41 more ships in the invasion armada had been sunk or damaged.

330 MILES FROM JAJAN

The landing on Okinawa brought American forces nearly twice as close to Japan proper as they are on Iwo, 750 miles south of Tokyo. The Hagushi tip of Kadena-ko in the Okinawa lies only 330 miles southwest of Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese home islands.

Capture of the island would give the Americans strategic air, land and sea bases from which to mount an invasion of the Japan proper or the China coast, only 400 miles to the west.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific fleet, hailed the invasion as assuring "our final decisive victory".

The main landing on Okinawa was preceded by landings beginning last Monday on the Kerama islands 10 to 20 miles west of Okinawa.

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT

An unprecedented 10-day air and sea bombardment, during which warships alone hurled 5,000 tons of steel and explosives into the Japanese defences, paved the way for the landing on Okinawa by the 10th Army under Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., former commander in Alaska.

The troops, spearheaded by amphibious tanks, struck inland and seized the Kadena airfield. They fanned out against still bafflingly-light resistance. The Japanese blew up a few bridges, but their orders were captured intact by the army troops.

Even lighter resistance, if possible, was met by Maj.-Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine Amphibious Corps, conquerors of Guam, at the southern end of the beachhead.

SIGHT NO JAPS

Not a single Marine was killed or wounded in the first half hour of the invasion and, eight and a half hours later, most marines were yet to see a Japanese soldier. American casualties were described as "incredibly light".

The Japanese were known to have 60,000 to 80,000 troops on Okinawa and their failure to oppose the landing was even more surprising in view of the fight to the death put up by the enemy garrison at Iwo.

Northville Man Hurt in Mishap

Injured in a collision late Saturday between an auto and truck, Thomas Johnson of Northville was brought to the city and admitted to Royal Alexandra hospital about 9:45 a.m. Monday. The accident, which is being investigated by RCMP, was believed to have resulted in a fracture of one leg, lacerations to the same limb and the face.

and other allied war planes are harrying them at every opportunity.

CREDIT TO "MONTY"

To Field Marshal Montgomery's planning must be laid a large portion of the credit for the spectacular break-through which has given the Allies an open road to Berlin and which will liberate Holland.

The American Army is part of Montgomery's 21st Army Group and is operating under his orders. This army joined with the U.S. 1st army to pocket of the Ruhr basin and then pushed on. It is now 100 miles east of the Rhine and still advancing.

Further north Montgomery sent the 1st Canadian and 2nd British armies forward to cut off the North Sea ports and liberate Holland, and the partial lifting of the security blackout today shows that these armies are in and beyond Muenster, the capital of Westphalia.

VETERANS IN LEAD

United Kingdom veterans of El Alamein and Montgomery's march across North Africa were out in front of the blazing tank drive that promised to clear the Nazis from all Holland in a matter of days and lay open the short road to Berlin.

German resistance was reported melting away in the path of the charging British and Canadian tanks. The army rode down and fanned out against still bafflingly-light resistance. The Japanese blew up a few bridges, but their orders were captured intact by the army troops.

Even lighter resistance, if possible, was met by Maj.-Gen. Roy S. Geiger's Third Marine Amphibious Corps, conquerors of Guam, at the southern end of the beachhead.

SIGHT NO JAPS

Not a single Marine was killed or wounded in the first half hour of the invasion and, eight and a half hours later, most marines were yet to see a Japanese soldier. American casualties were described as "incredibly light".

The Japanese were known to have 60,000 to 80,000 troops on Okinawa and their failure to oppose the landing was even more surprising in view of the fight to the death put up by the enemy garrison at Iwo.

Third Army struck through the German centre to the gates of Eisenach, 152 miles southwest of Berlin and only 40 miles from the Nazi government's temporary administrative seat at Weimar.

In the south American Seventh and the French army armies knifed deep into the German escape routes leading to Hitler's "last redoubt" in the Bavarian mountains. The Americans were barely 40 miles from the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg, and French spearheads were moving on Stuttgart and the Vichy hideaway at Sigmaringen, 31 and 85 miles to the southeast.

The avenging French army, led by Moroccan and Algerian veterans, is pushing hard for the castle town of Sigmaringen. It is here that the aged Marshal Henri Petain and the traitor Pierre Laval last were reported hiding out under the protection of the Gestapo. They are moving in force on a front of more than 12 miles.

INDICATES COLLAPSE

The extent of the German collapse in the north where the Canadian divs are threatening the whole Nazi army positions, is evidenced by the flaming ruins of Rheine. Here the Luftwaffe blew up its greatest fighting base in western Germany, leaving the Nazi ground forces to the mercy of the Allied air forces.

Inside the Ruhr pocket some troops are resisting fiercely. Most of the trapped divisions, however, appear ready to quit and the area is said to festooned with white flags.

In any event front-line correspondents predict that the entire Ruhr will be cleared within a very few days. That triumph, more than any other Allied victory in the east or west, signals the end of Germany's bid for world conquest.

Stripped of the great arsenals of the Ruhr, the Nazi regime that Hitler boasted would endure for a thousand years, has little hope of lasting for another thousand hours.

Job Emergency Action Planned

OTTAWA, April 2.—(CP)—Arthur MacNamara, national director of selective service, said last night that the government job control organization has set up establish "emergency" offices in every major Canadian city to "handle any postwar layoff rush."

"We intend to put emergency offices in all the larger cities," he said, in commenting on a Vancouver dispatch saying special emergency machinery is slated for the early post-war period are to be implemented there.

ectional grants, authorized by the present legislature was increased by $525,000, the estimates of his department more than twice as much as the department closest to this amount, public works, which was increased by $208,000. He stated that distribution of this grant would be made through ordinary grants $1,164,000; equalization grants, $353,000 and special grants, $1,247,000. Additional grants would be made to more materially assist town and village school districts. All money would be distributed according to need, and in ways which would help eliminate what he called a great disparity in mill rates required for school purposes in various districts.

Mr. Ansley described himself as "one of those people who believe that one essential to improving education is to improve the lot of the teacher." He declared that an important step in this direction had been taken by completing negotiations for the University of Alberta to take over the complete program of teacher training.

"From now on," he said, "any time spent in teacher training will earn full credit towards a university degree." Instructors at teacher-training institutions were henceforth be listed on the university payroll, with the department of education retaining absolute control of training policy.

SCHOOL HOLIDAYS

The speaker also reviewed the matters of school holidays, salaries and pensions.

The latter subject was dealt with more fully by R. J. Gaunt, chairman of the board of administrators for the Teachers' Retirement Fund. Mr. Gaunt stated that there was now more than a million and a quarter dollars in the Pension Fund, from which a total monthly pension payment of $3,272 was made in Alberta to 112 pensioned teachers.

Mr. Gaunt said that the teachers, in this work, had their feet only on the first or second rung of the ladder leading to an adequate pension. He appealed to the younger members of the profession to improve the situation by showing the same courage and faith that had been shown by "the old guard."

Monday's session were opened officially by Dr. C. Sansom, two-term president of the ATA. The first work undertaken by the assembly was the striking of the following committees: finance, H. Melfesen; steerage, W. Kujath; publicity, Roy Gould; resolutions, L. L. Kostash, G. C. French, W. Rae, D. S. Dandel, Mrs. Metalkevich.

The meetings are being held in the Macdonald hotel's main dining room. Scores of tables have been arranged to seat the executive's platform, on which were seated Monday: T. N. Roche, Calgary district representative; H. C. Newness, ATA vice-president; L. L. Kostash, Northeastern Alberta representative; J. A. Smith, past president; C. C. Ansley, South Eastern Alberta representative; W. A. Kujath, representative for North West Alberta; W. A. Rae, South West Alberta; M. R. Butterfield, East Central Alberta; D. C. Randall, Central Western Alberta; Dr. Sansom; G. C. French, Edmonton district; John W. Barnett, general secretary-treasurer; and Mr. Gaunt.

MAYOR TO SPEAK

During the afternoon sessions, Mayor John W. Fry was scheduled to welcome the delegates to the convention. Study of various resolutions will proceed.

The main item to be considered at the current convention is a resolution which would change the ATA constitution to the extent of banding together groups of ATA locals into a number of councils. From these councils delegations would be appointed to attend future general meetings of the organization, eliminating the need of having separate representation from each local. The same resolution, put before a straw vote following the autumn conventions of the various locals last year, passed with a strong majority, and is expected to pass when introduced here.

tain sections of four Alberta statutes, the Judicature Act, the Land Titles Act, the Vendors' and Mortgagees' Cost Exaction Act and the Mechanics' Lien Act, inapplicable to mortgages taken out under the NHA. Details of the legislations were approved last week by Hon. J. L. Ilsey, Dominion finance minister.

TO OPERATE PLAN

According to government spokesman in the legislature last week, the provincial housing association plan will be operated regardless of the lending institutions' decisions to enter the Alberta field.

Regardless of how much money the institutions would bring into the building picture, it was stated the housing association would aid in penetrating the present home shortage, and therefore would be brought into operation.

The keenest interest has been displayed throughout the province in the National Housing Act and hundreds of applications from prospective home builders have been received at the National Housing Act administration office here since it was opened late last year. It is understood that close to 1,000 applications, or inquiries, have been received at this office concerning home building loans.

Under the present plan intending home builders will have to make application to the loan company of their choice. When the application is made, an appraisal of the proposed building will be made, and the loan will be granted on the basis of that appraisal rather than on the cost of the structure.

Following the appraisal the proposed loan will be submitted to the National Housing Act Administrative offices at Ottawa for approval.

TERMS OF ACT

Under the terms of the legislation 75 per cent of the loan will be made by the lending companies, and 25 per cent by the Dominion government.

National Housing Act officials here stated Monday that they have not yet received instructions from Ottawa but are expecting them within the next few days.

Several branch offices of insurance companies here are conferred with National Housing Act officials Monday in preparation of loaning in Alberta under the act.

Austria Capital Is Outflanked By Red Advance

plunged to within 20 miles of Vienna after capturing Trausendorf, 22 miles southeast of the Austrian capital and just west of Lake Neusiedler.

2 CITIES OUTFLANKED

The advance also carried to within 30 miles of the "greater Vienna" area delineated by the Germans after the 1938 Anschluss and embracing 250 square miles.

Both Vienna and Wiener Neustadt, 24 miles to the south, were outflanked by another column which drove 27 miles inside Austria and captured Kirchau, 36 miles south southwest of Vienna. This force cut the Wiener Neustadt-Zagreb railway and advanced to within five miles of the Vienna-Venice trunk railway.

Wiener Neustadt, site of a much-bombed German Messerschmitt aircraft plant, presumably was stormed by Third Army Group troops which seized Mattersburg, eight miles southeast of the industrial centre and 15 miles northeast of Kirchau. Soviet guns were firing into Wiener Neustadt.

Canada's Total Casualties 90,837 for Three Services

OTTAWA, April 2 — (CP) — The Canadian Army suffered 2,661 casualties in February—third lowest monthly total since D-Day, June 6—defence headquarters announced last night in a statement which showed Canada's total casualties were 90,837 for the three services in the war period ending Feb. 28.

Lower Army monthly totals were 1,998 recorded in November during the lull which followed capture of the Scheldt Estuary and 2,068 in January when Canadian activity was limited on the Holland front while American forces were engaged in turning back the German counter-offensive.

FEBRUARY CASUALTIES FOR NAVY

The February casualties for the Navy totalling 46 and the Army totalling 2,661 were higher than the previous month but the RCAF total of 521 compared with a January total of 640, the highest since September when the service suffered 775 casualties.

In the four and a half years of the First Great War Canadian casualties totalled 190,032, including 62,817 dead. A Wartime Information Board estimate of intake into the armed forces up to last September totalled more than 1,000,000 while in the last war a total of about 630,000 Canadians served.

MERCHANT SEAMEN NOT INCLUDED

The latest casualty total of 90,837 does not take into account 1,200 merchant seamen lost up to Feb. 22, 1944 and a small number of merchant air force casualties.

Following are February totals with January totals in brackets:

	Dead	Wounded	Missing-Prisoner Interned		Total
Navy	121 (161)	7 (*107)	*82 (*152)		46 (*98)

Easter Is Marked In War-Torn Lands

By The Canadian Press

An Easter rich in the promise of European peace was marked with solemn reverence in many war-torn countries yesterday, though the grim business of war itself thundered on unabated.

Thousands of Allied troops—outnumbering the Italian civilians present—attended two Easter masses celebrated simultaneously in the great Basilica of St. Peter. Thousands of other soldiers were present at religious services in Jerusalem.

Most men on front-line service had a chance to mark the holy day in services in makeshift chapels.

Sunrise services were common throughout the United States, which generally enjoyed good weather. New York jammed with holiday visitors, turned out a record crowd for the traditional Easter parade down Fifth Avenue.

Leaves Navy

OTTAWA, April 2—(CP)—Naval headquarters yesterday announced the return of Capt. Humphrey McMaster, 49, of Toronto, chief of naval personnel, Royal Canadian Navy, to civilian life March 31 and appointment of Capt. A. M. Hope, 45, as his successor.

New Social Revolution

Rich Landowners in Gt. Britain Being Taxed Out of Existence

By BARBARA WACE

LONDON, April 2—(AP)—The Lord of the British Manor is being taxed out of existence.

For hundreds of years, he has ruled the life of his district with a bouseful of retainers.

Now increased death duties and wartime labor problems have proved too much for him. Reluctantly he is leaving the vast house and garden he no longer can keep up, and retiring to a London flat.

Thus, four-centuries after the Reformation when the whole pattern of British life was changed by dissolution of the monasteries, England again is faced by social revolution.

Rich landowners like Lord Astor and the Duke of Westminster probably have less than sixpence in the pound left after the super-tax is paid. Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has said he doubts if more than 60 or 70 individuals in the country now have net incomes of more than $24,000 a year.

Through war casualties, many old families have had to pay death duties more than once in a few years.

U.K. Farm Experts Arrive at Coast For Dominion Tour

VANCOUVER, April 2—(CP)—Six delegates from the British National Farmers' Union who arrived here over the week-end from San Diego, Calif., after a trip throughout Australia and New Zealand, are glad to be back in the northern hemisphere again where it "is good to see spring cultivations and deciduous trees awaiting the warmer weather."

More than four months ago these six farm experts, headed by James Turner, of Sheffield, Yorkshire, 37-year-old president of the National Farmers' Union of England and Wales, left Great Britain for the 40,000-mile tour which within the next three weeks will take them throughout the farming centres of Canada. They plan on returning overseas early in May.

Veteran Is Killed In Gale at Coast

VANCOUVER, April 2—(CP)—A record gale which swept Vancouver and district early Saturday claimed the life of a returned soldier but otherwise caused only minor damage. The wind, which reached a velocity of 72 miles an hour, subsided shortly after daybreak.

Michael Krupp, 35, was electrocuted when he picked up an electric light line which had blown down in front of his Manitoba street home to prevent it from setting his house afire.

British Columbia Telephone Company and British Columbia Electric Railway officials reported scattered minor line breaks where poles or lines were blown down.

The storm funnelled down the coast from the Queen Charlotte Island area shortly after midnight Friday and hit its peak around 3 a.m.

Bag Four Planes

LONDON, April 2—(CP)—Canadian airmen shot down four Focke-Wulf 190's Saturday, three of them falling to two City of Winnipeg squadron fliers—Flt. Lt. R. E. Innis of Battleford, Sask., and F/O. R. W. Lawson, Buffalo, N.Y. One RCAF aircraft is missing.

Netherlanders Gay As Canucks Arrive

By DOUGLAS AMARON

WITH THE CANADIANS IN HOLLAND, April 2.—(CP)—Smiling faces are the road signs that tell Canadian soldiers they have crossed the frontier from Germany into Holland.

The lifeless apathy of the Germans is replaced by the warm friendliness of the Netherlanders.

In the streets of this town and others civilians were decked out in their Sunday best. Houses were decorated with flags and little girls wore orange ribbons and boys had on orange sashes.

There wasn't a surly face in the whole lot.

The Black Watch moved against the town Saturday night and early Sunday. Companies under Maj. "Val" Traversy of Montreal and Capt. Bob Davey of Victoria made good progress.

Some Germans were fanatical to the end. One wounded Nazi bit a stretcher-bearer who bound his wounds and hurled a glass of water at medical personnel. Another tried to strangle the Canadian who captured him.

Fire in Ship's Hold Extinguished After Eight-Hour Battle

VANCOUVER, April 2—(CP)—Fire in a cargo of lime aboard the 250-ton coastal freighter SS Bervin was extinguished by firemen late yesterday after an eight-hour battle.

The vessel, operated by the Frank Waterhouse and Company of Canada, Ltd., coastwise freighting company, was en route to New Westminster, 12 miles south of here, when smoke was seen pouring from the hold.

The Vancouver fireboat rushed to meet the ship just outside the harbor entrance.

Company officials said there was only "slight" damage to the 150-ton cargo and the ruined lime was loaded onto a scow before the Bervin proceeded to her dock in the harbor.

Use Prisoners

OTTAWA, April 2—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell Saturday announced the labor department, the defence department and the province of Ontario have made arrangements to provide the services of limited number of prisoners of war for farm work in southwestern Ontario.

Say Wheat Ample For Export Needs

OTTAWA, April 2—(CP)—Adequate supplies of wheat exist in Canada, the United States and Argentina to meet the needs of importing countries; the more immediate problem is the transportation and processing of sufficient wheat to meet these needs, the Dominion bureau of statistics said today in a review of the world wheat situation.

Because of smaller requirements of wheat for feed in the United States in 1944-45 a "substantial quantity" of American wheat will be released for export, and the year-end carry-over also is expected to increase, the bureau said.

If sufficient cars and ships become available, U.S. gross exports may exceed 140,000,000 bushels during the current crop year, leaving from 350,000,000 to 375,000,000 bushels for carry-over at June 3, 1945. Although the volume of Canadian exports in 1944-45 is still uncertain it is not likely that stocks of wheat in Canada will fall below 300,000,000 bushels.

Canadians Among 400 Ex-Prisoners Landed in Britain

GLASGOW, April 2—(Reuters)—Canadians were among 400 British ex-prisoners of war who were disembarked Saturday night after being delayed for two days aboard ship in the Firth of Clyde owing to a smallpox case.

The exact number of Canadians was not known but all were believed to be army personnel.

All the men had been freed from German camps in face of the Great Russian drive and found their way to Odessa, from where they sailed.

A group of 1,100 Allied servicemen, including 32 Canadian airmen and soldiers, arrived Friday at Liverpool from Odessa, also former prisoners of war of Germany.

PEERLESS MOTOR OIL

"Clarkson process important advance," experts declare

B-A Peerless Motor Oil is made by a unique 5-point-process at the most up-to-the-minute refinery in Canada, designed to make lubricants which will stand up in our Canadian climate.

1. High Vacuum Distillation! Heat is bad for oil. High Vacuum distillation means lower refining temperature. Peerless is refined with exceptionally high vacuum.
2. Furfural Treatment! Ring sticking, 'varnish,' corrosion, sludge . . . the useless 'fractions' in the crude which cause each of these, are removed in this process.
3. Wax Extraction! This is most important to Canadians. Canadian specifications on this point exceed U.S. standards. Thanks to M.E.K. solution . . . sub-zero dewaxing temperatures, every trace of harmful wax is extracted from Peerless Motor Oil!
4. Catalytic Clay! This fascinating process 'polymerizes' out any last few lingering impurities. It is here Peerless Motor Oil gets its sparkling colour.
5. "It's Alloyed!" This is the final step that turns B-A Peerless Motor Oil into the 'stainless steel' among oils. By this unique process the natural tendency of all oils to decompose, forming harmful deposits in the engine, is corrected.

Carefree driving depends on proper lubrication. Because "it's alloyed," B-A Peerless stands up to modern driving conditions better, keeps repair costs down!

Time to change old, tired, winter grade oil for new, sparkling, "alloyed" Peerless Motor Oil! Drive in tomorrow where you see the "sign of the big B-A."

"It's Alloyed"

When we've made the finest, most efficient oil known to petroleum chemistry, we "alloy" it, to protect it against heat and pressure in the engine of your car.

Longer car life, lower repair bills seen with unique, five-point-process lubricating oil, perfected at Canada's most modern refinery

RESISTS HEAT AND PRESSURE HELPS KEEP ENGINES CLEAN

Just as iron is first refined, then alloyed to make stainless steel, B-A's remarkable new Peerless Motor Oil is protected against oxidation to keep engines clean longer.

This sensational advance means cash savings to you. The most frequent cause of repair bills—accidents apart—is faulty lubrication, arising from the actual decomposition of lubricating oil in the crankcase of your car. It will pay you, this spring, to change to B-A Peerless Motor Oil!

"It's Alloyed!" Yes, Peerless Motor Oil is specially treated to inhibit oxidation, keep engines cleaner thus cutting repair costs, keeping your car on the road!

Are you getting full protection from the oil you buy?

Unless the oil in the crankcase of your car is a really modern oil, chances are it won't do equally well all the things an oil must if it is to give full protection.

First, of course, oil must guard the rapidly moving parts against friction . . . often under pressures of 1000 lbs. to the square inch. For this you need an oil that starts "oilier." B-A Peerless is made from selected lubricating crude oils.

Next it has to carry off the tremendous heat—from 400° to 600° F.—generated in the combustion chamber and do this without thinning out or breaking down. One reason why Peerless Motor Oil is "alloyed" against oxidation.

Oil must also carry away impurities formed by combustion. And—more important—it must not add by its own decomposition to these impurities. Again Peerless scores! Because it's "alloyed" it inhibits oxidation, avoids harmful 'varnish' or sludge.

Lastly an oil must seal in power! This means it must maintain the right body at all temperatures. B-A Peerless Motor Oil has an exceptionally high V.I. (Viscosity Index)!

Longer car life is what you get at the familiar B-A sign! This year, change early to the amazing new Peerless Motor Oil. "It's Alloyed" to cut repair costs!

YOU ALWAYS BUY WITH CONFIDENCE AT THE SIGN OF THE BIG B-A

Deferred Investing

The survey made for the provincial post-war reconstruction committee shows that town householders, farmers and business concerns in Alberta plan to invest $690,000,000 in new houses and other buildings, machinery, equipment and appliances. That sounds like a lot of money, and it is. It represents deferred buying and buying that would have been done over a current period of years if wartime prosperity had not been curbed by wartime scarcities and controls. Continued limitations of materials, manufactured commodities and labor will tend to spread this delayed spending over a term of years, and the amount indicates the stabilizing influence the gradual investment will have during the transition period.

A remarkably large proportion of this reserve capital is already in possession of those who plan the spending, in the form of savings certificates and war bonds, which can be converted into cash. These are valuable assets for the convenient and profitable method by which to accumulate and hold savings intended ultimately for building a home, extending a business place, or buying farm or other machinery when the supply situation clears. Hundreds of millions of dollars are marked for such purposes are now carried in bonds, and will provide a phenomenal share of post-war spending money.

This branch of the reconstruction program is therefore only fractionally dependent upon the ability of private parties to borrow money. Probably most of those covered by the survey have the bulk of their proposed outlay at hand and will have to incur relatively little debt.

Britain Gets In

There is no surprise in Admiral Nimitz' announcement that British battleships and plane-carriers are with the task force or forces now pouring shells and bombs into Japan's inner defences. That was the purpose for which the visit of Admiral Fraser were sent to the Pacific some months ago. The Tokyo broadcaster was early with the news that this fleet had entered Indian waters, but refrained from mentioning its nearer approach — perhaps out of consideration for the already jumpy nerves of his listeners. That the Jap naval authorities knew its whereabouts is indicated by the fact that Admiral Nimitz no longer thought it worth while to hide it's back in the news.

Thus far the Japanese navy has not justified its size, reputation, or the dependence placed upon it. But it is not wise to discount the striking power of the main enemy battle fleet. Despite known losses its strength can only be surmised. Nor does the refusal to give battle necessarily mean that it will not do so. What is certain is that the odds against it are growing, that Japanese positions are falling one after another, that the Empire itself is under schedule for air attack—without the fleet striking a downright blow. Only Tokyo knows why.

Two-Way Trade or None

President Roosevelt wants Congress to make a 50 per cent cut in United States tariff rates, in order to expand the volume of trade with other countries. The Republicans apparently intend to oppose the reduction, but since they are a minority in both the House and the Senate the prospect is that the duties will come down.

That is a subject on which Canadians too will have to make up their minds, and give a decision when election-day comes along a few months hence. There has been a tariff truce in Canada during the war years. Partly because the war was the all-important topic. But also because there was an export demand for more than we could produce, while we couldn't get more imports if we wanted them.

With the war progressing favorably in both theatres and peace definitely in sight, the question of markets and how to get them is emerging as a problem of the not too distant future. And, as in other problems of readjustment, it will be well if the plans can be made in advance. Later will be too late.

The action pending at Washington has definite bearing on whether or not Canada will take the line of low tariffs and widely expanded and expanding trade. The bald fact is that if we do not take that course, United States exports will flow into foreign markets and our surpluses will pile up at home and smother industry into idleness. Foreign buyers will have to pay for goods with goods. If we won't take their goods they won't be able to take ours.

Loss and Gain

Russian soldiers captured Danzig after long, bitter and costly fighting—and then hoisted the Polish flag. This is the first time in centuries that it has flown there as the symbol of undivided authority. That very practical gesture of Stalin's good faith should go far to restore friendly relations between the two countries, for Russian blood flowed in streams to wrest the city from Poland's assailant. It is a token that the compensation promised Poland at Yalta will be delivered.

No considerable section of the Polish people approve in itself the agreement to fix the eastern boundary of their country at the "Curzon line." The most that can be hoped is that the majority will accept it as the best arrangement possible in the circumstances. Ignoring all other considerations, Poles could hardly expect that Britain and the United States would fight Russia to prevent the border being placed where a British statesman said it should be placed at the close of the First Great War. That was the ultimate alternative.

There is to be territorial gain, as well as loss, in Poland's war account. The Poles have been told they will be compensated at the expense of Germany. They already have Danzig as a part instalment, and an earnest that East Prussia will be theirs, along with sections of Pomerania and Silesia. This will make up in resources if not in area the territory which Russia recovers, lying east of the Curzon line—territory which Poland took by conquest in 1921.

The Tokyo radio says there is a growing feeling in Japan that the war may last 20 years. It won't, because the Japs won't last that long. MacArthur's forces have finished 297,000 of them in the Philippines alone, and a similar army in Burma is in process of extinction. Even the Jap cradle can't stand that pace.

The Spanish claimant has formally invited General Franco to get out of office and so open the way to a restoration of the monarchy. The Spaniards may or may not want Don Juan for their king, but they are likely to think more kindly of the idea since he refuses to yoke himself with Franco. Much more likely than Franco is to accept the invitation to absent himself.

Slim Fare and Shiny Clothes

By William H. Stoneman in the Chicago Daily News

Statistics prove what every inhabitant of wartime Britain learned long ago from his stomach and his mirror, namely, that the diet is just barely "sufficient" and that the cloth is getting awfully shiny.

The average citizen of the United Kingdom now eats an average of just about one pound of meat per week compared to one and three-quarter pounds in peacetime. He consumes only four fifths as many fats as he did before and one half as much sugar—eight ounces compared to a prewar pound.

The average man or woman can't get a new suit or new dress for two or three years. Most of them are wearing garments bought in 1939 or 1940. During the first year of clothing rationing—following June, 1941, when people got 66 clothing coupons, people bought one half as much clothing as they did annually before the war. Now they get only 48 coupons. Before the war the average British woman bought 14 pairs of stockings a year. Now she buys an average of two and a half pairs.

The British diet was never calculated to tempt the palate of a Frenchman or an American. Since the war it hasn't even tempted the palate of an Englishman.

What they always had here, for those who could afford it, was quantity. Now it is even hard to get full.

Victims of an unfriendly climate the British have always been great meat eaters and meat, of course, was one of the first things to be heavily rationed.

The ordinary civilian is allowed the equivalent of about 24 cents worth of meat a week and he can take his choice of meat. Hamburger costs about 20 cents a pound, a good steak 44 cents, pork chops 36 cents, stewing lamb 14 cents, breast of lamb eight cents.

In addition, everybody is entitled to the equivalent of about five rashers of bacon a week.

Centering her menus on the amount of meat available, the ordinary housewife with a family of four would work out meals in about the following fashion:

In the first place she would plan to have only one substantial meal at home each day, leaving her menfolk to get at least one other meal at the factory canteen.

She would buy one roast of beef or pork for Sunday dinner, in traditional British style. That would give the members of the family's total meat rations. Then the menu would work out this way and you must be surprised to know how many British dishes can eat almost exactly these meals this week:

SUNDAY DINNER: Roast beef, cabbage, potatoes, and fruit pie with custard.

MONDAY: Cold roast beef, salad, (without olive oil) and jam fritters.

TUESDAY: The remains of the cold meat converted into hash and steamed pudding.

WEDNESDAY: Sausages, which are unrationed and practically inedible and tapioca pudding.

THURSDAY: Meat made from rabbit or ram lamb bought with the remaining ration points plus jam tart.

FRIDAY: Dried pea soup with some bacon in it, followed by vegetable pie and custard. Or, in the case of Catholic families, fish cakes or other fish, none of which is rationed.

SATURDAY: Fish pie followed by jam pancakes.

If your mouth isn't watering by this time you're nothing or a vegetarian.

The clothing situation is just about as thrilling. As noted above, every adult gets coupons and these and these are not sufficient to do more than supplement one's existing wardrobe. A man's overcoat takes 18 coupons, a complete suit, 26; socks, two coupons a pair; a cotton shirt, five coupons; pajamas, nine coupons; a pair of shoes, seven; one set of underwear, nine; three pairs of stockings, six, and four small handkerchiefs, one coupon.

If the British have been brave in this war they certainly haven't seen or eaten many of the traditional spoils. Some of them are beginning to wonder whether there is any justice.

New Guinea Rescue

When Lieut Adamer, United States Thunderbolt pilot, was on reconnaissance over New Guinea he struck dirty weather and his plane, uncontrollable, fell towards 5,000-foot mountain peaks.

He tried to bale out, but stuck in the opening. He kicked the stick forward, forcing the nose down and plummeted clear.

In blinding rain he landed in a tree in a gorge and slid down the trunk. First he improvised a needle from a fish hook with silk thread from the parachute mended his clothes, ripped by the tree.

Then he set out for the coast, rationing himself to a quarter of a stick of chocolate and three atebrin tablets a day. For a week he was lost. His boots wore through, and he was suffering from exposure.

On the eighth day he stumbled into a village. The natives were friendly. They said they had never seen a white man, and they stampeded into the bush. But they left a baby behind, and when they returned they were established friendly relations. They fed and sheltered him, called him "the white ghost".

When he resumed his tramp he had native guides. A mission boy met him, took him to another village, where he built up his strength on eggs, chicken and bananas.

His hosts carried him up sheer cliffs on his next stage. On the 20th day he reached the coast, and a barge took him to Madang, where Australians put him in A.I.F. uniform and sent him on to his unit in Dutch New Guinea.

Punch in New Word

From the Saturday Review of Literature.

Perhaps the most spectacular of all new words of 1944 is Maury Maverick's gobbledygook, which he defines as "talk or writing which is long, pompous, vague, involved, usually with Latinized words". He wrote as follows concerning the word's origin:

People asked me how I got the idea for it. I don't know. It must have come in a vision. Perhaps I was thinking of the old bearded turkey gobbler back in Texas who was always gobbledygobbling and strutting with ridiculous pomposity. At the end of his gobble was a sort of gook.

The word met with an immediate response over the country and bids fair to be a permanent addition to the English vocabulary. Typical of the new usage is a reviewer's comment that a certain author "writes the purest gobbledygook". The department of English at Lehigh University proposed a plan to put "all jargonists and pseudo-scientists" into a university city to work on a desert isle, and this was to be named The University of Gobbledy Gook".

No doubt a train of derivatives will appear, for already two are in use—gobbledygooker, used by Maverick, and gobbledygookish, used by the columnists Van Devander and Player.

The business man sank wearily into his armchair.

"You look very tired, dear," said his wife. "Have you had a very hard day at the office?"

"Not exactly," he answered; "but when my office boy came in with the old story of going to his grandmother's funeral I decided to teach him a lesson and accompany him."

"And, of course, you found it was a football match?"

"No such luck—it was his grandmother's funeral."

Bad Spots in War on Diphtheria

Contributed by the Health League of Canada.

In accordance with a resolution passed at its last annual meeting, the Health League of Canada has called the attention of the nine provinces to the possibility of compulsory legislation in connection with diphtheria and whooping cough.

The resolution stated that the incidence of diphtheria in Canada was still far too high and put the League on record as advocating a continuous educational program directed towards immunization against these diseases.

In this connection it is interesting to review results of a diphtheria survey conducted by the immunization division of the Health League for the years 1934 to 1943 inclusive. It was shown that at the end of 1943, Canada, on the whole, presented a fairly good picture, but there still remained some sore spots which hurt the nation's record as a whole.

Survey statistics from 40 reporting cities for 1934 revealed 1,973 cases and 74 deaths compared with 1,100 cases and 81 deaths for 44 cities in 1943—no appreciable change.

The survey showed improvement by most cities over the 10-year period, but the overall picture was given a black eye by figures from war-jammed Halifax which in 1943 reported 322 cases and 21 deaths compared with 77 cases and four deaths in 1934.

The war and diphtheria histories of Halifax are closely linked, the survey also showing that in the four war years involved this crowded East Coast port reported 2,082 cases and 99 deaths compared with only 225 cases and 20 deaths in the four years immediately preceding the war.

On the other side of the fence are the cities of Hamilton and Brantford, in Ontario, both of which produced perfect records—no cases of diphtheria in the 10 years.

Vancouver showed a better record for the four war years, while Ottawa looked much better—26 cases and no deaths for the four years against 113 and five deaths for the previous four years.

In other cities of more than 100,000 population the following conclusions can be drawn after comparing diphtheria statistics of the years and those for the four years just prior to the conflict:

Edmonton, about the same: Winnipeg, more cases (236-236) but equal number of deaths (11); Toronto, fewer cases but more deaths (70-76) for the 10 and 4 years, while there were 58 cases and seven deaths; Montreal, slight decrease in cases and deaths for the Quebec City, picture still bad but much improved in four years, 1940-43, 10-6; Hamilton, fewer cases and deaths and 39 deaths, compared with the previous four years when there were 2,13[illegible] cases and 191 deaths.

The figures of 21 deaths in Halifax topped the 1943 Canadian figures, while other larger cities reported cases and deaths for that year as follows: Vancouver, 3-2; Edmonton, 11-1; Calgary, 9-3; Regina, 1-1; Winnipeg, 106-7; Toronto, 16-0; London, 1-0; Windsor, 0[illegible]; Ottawa, 8-0; Montreal, 126-22; Quebec City, 183-3, Saint John, 22-4.

Problem of the Middle Powers

Volume of Criticism Is Focussed on This Point

By GRANT DEXTER

The Security Council poses the problem of the Middle Powers. On this point the greatest volume of criticism has centred.

It is to be noted at once that the criticism is constructive—not destructive. The cause of the Middle Powers is being championed by influential voices within the United Kingdom and the United States, as well as by these powers themselves. Moreover, while criticizing the charter on this point, none of the Middle Powers, so far, has carried its opposition to the extreme lengths of indicating a refusal to become a member of the new world organization.

The problem is this: Because of the right of veto the Council will be largely an instrument of the Great Powers. All members of the security organization will be morally obligated to place power at the disposal of the Council and to assist in carrying out measures short of military action such, for example, as economic sanctions. It it agreed that since the Great Powers must bear the major burden of such actions, all the members will be involved proportionately to their power.

This being so, why draw the line between but two classes of powers—the Great and the others? Why not recognize a middle division? Canada as the greatest of the Middle Powers has been commonly used to illustrate the point.

"It is the right," says the Economist, "that due honor should be paid to the "nations of steel and muscle . . . If Canada is prevented by the smallness of her population from taking rank with the Great Powers, she has . . . made a place for herself in a category all her own . . . In absolute terms, the distance that separates Canada from the Great Powers is less than that between her own achievement and that of any other of the smaller United Nations."

"Once recognition of the special position of the Great Powers is translated into constitutional terms," says the London Times, "formidable new difficulties arise; for if it removes the absurdity of treating Albania as an equal partner with the United States or Britain or Russia, it leaves open the absurdity equally patent and (once differentiation has been admitted) far more invidious, of placing Albania on the same footing with Canada or Brazil." The Times commends Mr. King's idea of functional representation as a practical solution of this problem.

"There is no recognized criterion for the assessment of the magnitude of states," says the Spectator, "but certainly a mere arbitrary division into great and small will not stand. Canada, despite her limited population, has exerted during the war a military and industrial effort which puts her little, if at all, below the pr[illegible] France as a world power by any method of estimation." The Spectator has repeatedly made the point that this problem of power would have to be solved by a more realistic division than is set down in the charter. It cannot be a case of "Great Powers" and the rest, for the rest consists not merely of Liberias and Costa Ricas but equally of Canadas and Brazils."

Nearer home, the case for the Middle Powers has found expression. It was put in the plainest of terms by Hon. Lester Pearson, Canadian Ambassador at Washington, in a public address at Winnipeg last December. Mr. Pearson's phrase was that power must be measured in terms of stature as well as of status. Professor Hans J. Morton, in his pamphlet on Dumbarton Oaks, puts it that nations must be "weighed as well as counted."

There is, of course, a degree of uncertainty as to how the Council will function. The decisive power, unquestionably, resides, as the text stands, with the Great Powers. But there are provisions that other powers affected by what is done may "participate" in these decisions. Hitherto, however, the meaning of the word "participate" has not been made clear.

While the documents are not public, it is known that several of the Middle Powers, including Canada, have communicated "views" (apart from specific amendments) in this matter to the Great Powers. Mr. King said so in his address to Parliament a few days ago. He did not make the communication public, but its contents are known to a few public property. A summary of the Canadian position appeared in the New York Herald of December 11. Judged by rather oblique references in Mr. King's speech, the unofficial summary is incomplete in one respect. In addition to stating the case of the Middle Powers for greater representation, the Canadian Government appears not to exclude regional representation.

The Canadian case is this: While the charter declares that it is based on the principle of sovereign equality of all peace-loving states, it provides that all nations shall confer the power and responsibility on the Security Council to act on their behalf. Canada might, therefore, be obligated to break off trade relations with some country, supply men, money and war material to the Council without having any effective part in those decisions than little nations that had no force to put at the disposal of the Council. This lack of distinction is not wholly acceptable. The charter seeks to relate power to responsibility. Hence the position of the Great Powers. Canada does not object to this, but proposes that the Middle Powers should also be given their due place. To this end, it is proposed that the veto right of the Great Powers (minus the right to vote when they are parties to a dispute) be retained, but that the non-permanent seats on the Council (of which there are six) be allocated to the Middle Powers. Decision should then be by majority—subject to the veto power—and referred to, should be binding only upon the Council. Other powers should be free to associate themselves with the decision, provided that the Assembly should be able to commit all members by a two-thirds majority.

It will be observed that Canada seeks not to extend the veto right or to make it more difficult for the Council to act, but to specify. Canada's contention is that nations whose co-operation might well be essential cannot accept absolute participate in the proceedings of the Council. Failing full participation, they should not be free to do for themselves or be subject to the decisions of a body of which they were members.

These distinctions are important. Other Middle Powers appear to be seeking a solution along different lines. Some, like Australia, favor regional representation in the non-permanent seats. Others would lessen the majority so that the support of a substantial number of the non-permanent members would be necessary. Argued by Canada, the tendency is, in effect, to enlarge the veto right—which would make the machinery more cumbersome and unwieldy.

It is notable that no one has undertaken to reply to the case for Canada as presented by the Middle Powers. This, undoubtedly, will be a major feature of the discussion at San Francisco. Mr. King said, frankly, that the Canadian delegation will "exert the utmost effort to secure due recognition of their the Middle Powers) relative standing among the nations of the world." And significantly it may be included Australia among those he regarded as typical Middle Powers.

Wartime Daycoach Journey

By Robert Tyre in Regina Leader-Post

No one's education is complete until he has travelled overnight in a day coach.

A day coach is a small town on wheels. Eating, if not studying, railroad guides, exchanging confidences with a neighboring passenger, adjusting the ventilators, excursions to the water tap, borrowing newspapers, knitting, wishfully staring at a maze of pretty curls in the seat ahead, looking for something in a valise, changing diapers, reading the condensed novelizations, smoking too many cigarettes—this is the normal routine of the day coach. A certain sense of unity of this mobile community include the arrival of new passengers, a visit from the news vendor with his basket, stops at way stations, and the periodic inspection of tickets.

The majestic entrance of the conductor flanked by his retinue of military policemen and lesser trainmen is as impressive and somewhat alarming experience for the inexperienced. The day coach booted feet are stealthily removed from adjoining seats; anxious fingers scramble into pockets and wallets to make sure that tickets are still there; mothers caution young children to be quiet; an atmosphere of tension grips the coach.

The conductor's mein is grim and suspicious as he advances. His manner says very plainly that he suspects the coach of harboring passengers who are trying to "beat" his way to some point. The coach may be divided into four classes: (1) ride without a ticket; (2) use one that has expired; (3) ride before the ticket's point of destination; (4) ride on overage child under a blanket; (5) carry livestock in a hatbox; (6) steal the car's supply of paper cups.

No wonder, one sees in Hollywood, does boy meet girl so frequently and with fewer variations of the theme than in a day coach. The strategy involved follows a time tested pattern and it seldom misses. Boy surveys his seat with an eye to the nearest unattached girl. Promptly and the offer of a cigarette helps to break the ice.

Or a bottle of pop alters the last vestige of reticence and conversation moves into high gear. At the end of a few hours Romeo casts himself across the aisle and perches on the arm of the seat beside Juliet. Then all is only a matter of minutes until the train pulls Romeo into the seat beside Juliet. The romantic bridgehead is established. The other passengers grin appreciatively and reach for a ham sandwich or an orange.

Travel is certainly broadening if the intake of food in a day coach is any criterion. Anything is mealtime on a passenger train. Let but one passenger uncover a stick of gum and begin chewing and 56 other passengers immediately dive into paper bags and suitcases for a pork pie or a dill pickle.

The most miserable individual in a day coach is that passenger who has exhausted his food supply and can't watch others eat without energetically gulping down cake and candy. Usually this individual doesn't stand the ordeal very long and jumps off in search of the trainman with the basket.

Bedtime in a day coach provides an interesting study of how the human body adapts itself to slumber. Sleep begins about the time the more pulchritudinous passengers gather up their baggage and move off to the sleeper. Pillows are rented and manoeuvred into a position on the seat which is supposed to approximate the night hanging the pillow about like a sparring partner and wind up by getting just as sore bruised with the pillow and resting on top of the passenger.

About the time a passenger gets himself nicely arranged on the seat for a spot of slumber the head agent pops in again and marches off to the next coach. The conductor invades the coach to punch tickets.

Incredible as it sounds some passengers actually do sleep in day coaches and their gentle snores mingle with the clickety clack of turning wheels and the muttered epithets of other passengers who have been awakened by the same wartime interrogation: "Is this trip Necessary?"

"The 64 Chevrolets in our Wartime Fleet are the Best Automobiles we have ever operated"

SAYS THIS CHEVROLET OPERATOR

Here is another wartime operator of Chevrolet who has taken time out to place on record his opinion of this great car's dependable, thrifty performance under war driving conditions! What he has to say about Chevrolet reliability and the quality service maintained by General Motors dealers during the war years, will prove a familiar story to Chevrolet owners everywhere in the Dominion. Canada's most popular car in peace, Chevrolet has won a new reputation by its ability to stand-up under tough, punishing war driving conditions. Thank you, Mr. Wallace, for your tribute to Chevrolet—"The standout car in peace and war!"

Mr. Kenneth Wallace, writer of the letter reproduced in this advertisement, is president of the De Luxe Cab Company, 251 Queen Street East, Toronto—operators of a fleet of 64 Chevrolets.

KENNETH R. WALLACE PRESIDENT

De Luxe Cab Limited
251 QUEEN STREET EAST TORONTO 2

STANLEY BAINES TRAFFIC MANAGER

"Our company switched to Chevrolets in 1933 and the fleet has been 100 per cent. Chevrolet ever since. Our higher mileages vary from 100,000 to 125,000 miles. In many cases these cars have never had the valves ground, major motor work or piston rings replaced. Most of the rear-ends have not been overhauled. The 64 Chevrolets in our fleet—1941 and 1942 models—are the best automobiles we have ever operated. We have learned that regular check-ups coupled with an exceptionally good automobile have resulted in amazing performance. Our average miles per gallon of gasoline is an good today as when the cars were new—and this is true over the entire fleet. All our major mechanical work has been done by GM dealers, because we believe that they render the right kind of high quality service work at a fair cost. In fact, it costs no more than if we did the work ourselves—and the results are more satisfactory.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean
SPORTS EDITOR

FOOTBALL in Edmonton, and the junior game in particular, has just lost a real friend. Although the late E. C. (Shag) Shaughnessy was interested in most competitive sports, none ranked with the grid pastime in his books and with it his interest extended much beyond that of a mere spectator.

"Shag" loved his rugby and so it was not surprising that he had a prominent role in the organizing of the Edmonton Junior Football League in 1940. He acted as treasurer for that thriving four-club circuit, Cy Burchell being president and Mel Wilson secretary. The teams were Maple Leafs, EAC, South Side and Varsity.

He became vice-president the following year and held the same position during 1942, Art Carlson being president for both terms. The league did not function as such during 1943 and pressure of private business prevented him from accepting any executive position last fall.

And it must have afforded "Shag" considerable personal satisfaction to see Edmonton junior football representatives win three successive Alberta titles while he was directly connected with the league, Maple Leafs won the provincial championship in both 1940 and 1941 and No. 3 "M" Depot (RCAF) repeated for Edmonton in 1942.

DUCKS, GEESE HERE EARLIER

ACCORDING to the latest report from Ducks Unlimited, ducks, geese and 15 species of smaller birds checked in on their northward migration ten days to two weeks ahead of their regular western Canada schedule.

First ducks were reported at Gull Lake on March 12 and the first flock of pintails arrived at DU's Many Island Lake in south east Alberta two days later. A pair of pintails were spotted near Fannystelle, Man., on March 16 and in five days thousands of pintails and mallards were busy on flooded grain fields south of Winnipeg, which had been abandoned only on Nov. 25 due to an exceptionally mild fall.

Geese started to arrive on March 21, a full week ahead of their usual date. First crows were seen on March 7, 10 days earlier than usual. Robins, killdeer, meadowlarks, juncos and several species of hawks all came from a week to 10 days before they were expected. Oddly enough, Mallards, days the first ducks to check in, were several days behind the pintails this season.

Deciding Game Tuesday Night

Boston Turns Back Detroit 5-3

BOSTON, April 2.—(CP)—Boston Bruins last night battled from behind to square their eight - point National Hockey League play-off series 6-6 by defeating Detroit Red Wings 5-3 before 13,500 fans in the sixth game at Boston Gardens. It was Bruins' first home - ice triumph against Wings since Dec. 28, 1943.

Veteran Bill Cowley, who contributed two goals to the Boston total, clinched victory at the 10-minute mark of the last period when he took Kenny Smith's passout from behind the net and poked it home for the only goal of the period.

Cowley opened scoring for Bruins after Jud McAtee, another two-goal producer, had put Red Wings one up in the first minute of play.

Joe Carveth blasted a shot past Paul Bibeault in the second session to put Wings ahead again but the goal touched off a Bruins' scoring splurge that resulted in goals by Bill Jennings, Herb Cain and Paul Gladu. McAtee added his second, the last for Detroit, as the period ended.

The Bruin defence held firm under a fierce Red Wing attack in the last 10 minutes of the game and except for inability to beat Bibeault and several fruitless Boston breakaways, the Wings were complete masters at the final whistle.

VETERANS STAR IN PLAYOFFS—Two National Hockey League veterans, Bill Cowley, above left, and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, right, turned up in star roles in two Stanley Cup semi-final games during the week-end. Cowley, outstanding Boston centre, started the Bruins on their way to the 5-3 win at Detroit, which kept them in the running, and then put over the clincher by scoring the only goal of the third period. Schriner, out of the NHL last season, came through in his old-time style at Toronto Saturday night, netting a timely counter as the Leafs eliminated the league champion Canadiens 3-2.

Good Preliminary Bout

Ted Christy Beats Thiede; Chief, Grable Disqualified

Ted (Bad Man) Christy of Hollywood took the odd fall of three in 5 minutes, 18 seconds with a standing shoulder press, gaining added leverage by adroit use of the ropes to win the main bout of Saturday night's wrestling card at the Empire theatre before a fairly well filled house.

The semi-windup between Chief Thunderbird and Lee Grable provided more action than the main show and it ranked with the best if it was not the top attraction of the season. With the count standing at a fall apiece, both men were disqualified by Referee Wally Beaumont for fighting outside the ring after a total of 46 minutes elapsed time.

Referee Cecil (Tiger) Goldstick followed the affair between Maurice de Blieck of Edmonton and "Indian Joe" Jacobs of Sarcee a draw after the two had worked on each other with considerable gusto and reasonable success for 60 minutes and with one fall each to show for their labors. The fall was full value for cost of ducats at the current rate of exchange in this match.

TWO OUT THREE TO TED

Thiede proved rather disappointing in the main bout, offering little by way of counter-attraction to Christy's stock-in-trade. The most speed the Oregonian showed was when he chased Christy out of the canvas corral and down into a dressing room haven in the basement immediately following the third fall swar...

Christy started out by choking his opponent and he added a little eye gouging as a side dish. Thiede did throw a nice shoulder block at Ted by way of reply to an extended hand and later dumped Christy out of the ring. Christy won the first fall in 13 minutes with a standing shoulder press.

Thiede absorbed considerable punishment as the big boys came out for the second fall, but he staggered back into conformation long enough to pin Christy with a short arm scissors at 6:36 and the crowd approved that fall to a man.

Cliff was the aggressor as the two came out for the rubber fall and he roughed up Christy before Christy took a pass at Referee Beaumont and received a few good punches in return. Thiede appeared to be essaying a comeback and had floored Christy twice when he suddenly became involved in another standing body press, made still more effective by utilizing the ropes.

GRABLE "PEOPLE'S CHOICE"

The Thunderbird-Grable match was announced as a six-round affair, each session to be 10 minutes, with two out of three falls as the alternative.

Grable, popular with the crowd and at 220 giving away 15 pounds, mixed it up with the Chief right from the start. The first fall went to Thunderbird in the second round, the actual time being 18:06. The two spent much of the third round outside the ring, and there were several quick dispersals of customers in front rows. Emily Grable came flying back over the ropes and flattened the Chief with a body press at 6:04, when Thunderbird and Referee Beaumont were settling a private skirmish.

The last minutes of the match were all action inside the ropes and at one stage the two gladiators, Referee Beaumont, a couple of policemen and "Tiger" Goldstick who was viewing the battle at close quarters, all got tangled up in the works. Grable received an ovation from the crowd following the double disqualification verdict.

BEST PRELIM SO FAR

The De Blieck versus "Indian Joe" match was easily the best preliminary of the season. Joe had a new pair of moccasins too and he took the first fall in the third round with a Boston crab.

There was real action in the fourth round, Joe's towel coming off third best. De Blieck proceeded to use Joe's nicely laundered linen for choking purposes. A spectator intervened and therefore disqualified had only half of the towel to operate with but he had fair success. He won the fall with a body press in just under 18 minutes.

Referee Goldstick pepped up things in the final round by making the affair a threesome. Other than a bite on the wrist, "Tiger" came out with flying colors and he eventually called the match a draw when the time gong went.

Ald. Syd Bowcott and Bill Brown were the timers and Art Ward the announcer.

Take Four Out of Six In Playoff

TORONTO, April 2.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night won their way into the Stanley Cup final for the first time since they won the trophy in the 1941-42 season. They produced a 3-2 conquest of Montreal Canadiens to win their eight-point semi-final series by eight points to four.

The 14,000 fans littered the ice with programs as the final whistle sounded after the Leafs, who finished in third place in the National Hockey League standings this season, successfully stood off a furious Montreal attack in the final minutes. It was the Leafs' fifth win of the series for the Leafs. The Canadiens, Stanley Cup winners a year ago and NHL champions for two seasons, won two games.

Each team scored a goal in the first period and each had one tally in the last but the Leafs got their margin of victory by getting the only counter of the second period. It was a scrambling affair in front left wing Sweeney Schriner who took a pass from wingmate Lorne Carr, shifted through a bewildered Montreal defence and beat Goalie Bill Durnan with a shot that took the corner of the net.

Defenceman Elwyn Morris of the Leafs scored the first goal. It came on a breakaway play on which he shifted clear of a five-man Montreal attack and then outdistanced Defenceman Hec Kilrea, Eddolls of Canadiens in a furious rink-long dash. It was the second goal Morris has scored this season, his first coming Thursday night in the fifth game of the series.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard shook clear of close Toronto checking long enough to get Montreal's first period goal. He picked up his own rebound and hiked a high shot that goaltender Frank McCool of Toronto seemed to barely see.

Centre Gus Bodnar tucked the game-winning goal in behind the first two minutes of the third period. Defenceman Walter (Babe) Pratt fired a terrific shot from the boards and Bodnar tipped it with his stick as he skated across the goalmouth. It was the first goal scored in the playoffs by Bodnar since he and Defenceman Bill Ezinicki provided a goal at the 15:26 mark. Lamoureux shot from the blue line and Bouchard gave it a final deflection on the way. The puck slid along the ice through a maze of players into the goal.

Three Toronto players—McCool, centre Ted Kennedy and right Wing Mel Hill—were injured in one thrust. Kennedy left the ice with a leg injury but the others remained in the game. Defenceman Bandleans pulled Durnan from the nets and replaced him with a forward and the Leafs, checking as they did, couldn't get organized, and the Leafs were unable to get a single direct shot away at the goal in the last minute.

McCool had 19 shots to handle in the game and Durnan had 27.

Moose Jaw Increases Lead In Playoff for Abbott Cup

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 2.—(CP)—Moose Jaw Canucks held hope today of bringing Saskatchewan the Western Canada junior hockey championship for the first time since 1936 after whipping Winnipeg Monarchs 6-2 Saturday night for their second straight victory in the best-of-seven western finals.

Goalie Bob Bonnetta was with Clint Albright for the first Winnipeg goal, the first of the game, and reclaimed Don McRae got the second after Canucks had built up a comfortable 6-1 lead.

The Saskatchewan champions who outplayed Monarchs by an even wider margin than in the series opener, were still without the service of Dick Butler, their ace left winger, who suffered a leg injury in the semi-finals against Edmonton Canadians, and defenceman Al Swaine who was injured in the Saskatchewan final against Prince Albert.

Western Girls' Hoop Series Opens Tonight at Westglen

Western Canada girls' playoff basketball returns to Edmonton tonight when Army and Navy Pats, Alberta champions, meet Winnipeg in the first game of the best of three western semi-final at Westglen commencing at 8:30 o'clock.

Four times in a row Winnipeg has opposed Vancouver in the final, but Clare Hollingsworth's Pats are hopeful of ousting them this year before they get to the final. The Pegs eliminated the strong Saskatoon Ramblers and were scheduled to arrive here this morning.

Four of last year's stalwarts—Captain Isabel Duncan, Onattie Kreacy, Julie Matoski and Eleanor Williams—are with the Winnipeg cagers again this year, and along with some new recruits promise to supply plenty of opposition for the Pats. Second game of the series will be Tuesday night at the same time and place.

Julie Matoski is reported to be the best free-thrower in the Manitoba capital and Lenora Cuthbert, a new-comer to western playoff basketball, is claimed to be the outstanding shoimaker of the 'Pegs. To compete with Julie, the Pats have Etta Dann who once held the free-throw record of the world, and anyone of the four Pats who have scored 18 points in a single game should be able to match strides with Lenora.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By FRED KERNER

TORONTO, April 2.—(CP)—The popular belief that the only good producers of basketball players are in the United States and Canada, may soon come and an end, Harry (London Free Press) Eisen opines. He bases his contention on the fact that one of the outstanding players in the junior loop in that city recently came from Wales.

The youngster in question is 16-year-old Ian Frost who came to Canada when he was 11. He had never heard of basketball, much less played it. But he wound up atop the scoring leaders this year in the secondary school league.

Born in Newport in South Wales, he was a fair hand at soccer and cricket, but now prefers baseball, softball and of course, basketball. He tried his hand at hockey, too, but found the silver blades a little difficult to master.

After the war, Ian plans to return to Wales. And with him he will bring basketball. If nothing else, the war may bring the game of basketball to Wales.

Good-news galore.

The Antwerp ice palais where Canadian soldiers, and some airmen, 'n Belgium don the skates and strap on guard playing hockey for their units, is the home of one of hockey's oddest leagues.

It's one league in which there can hardly be any individual records, since the team lineups change almost daily. Another odd angle is that many of the teams cannot use their regimental names or numbers and so most of them operate simply under the "an artillery unit" or "an infantry unit," or some such moniker.

The outstanding point of most of the games to date has been the high amount of shutouts. In one series of 21 games, 14 produced goose-eggs. Fleet Army Troops workshop team administered the most lopsided beating to date when they scored a 10-0 victory over "an artillery unit".

Racing To Resume In U.S. After V-Day

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—Racing people Saturday night formally received from Jimmy Byrnes the word they have been waiting for weeks—that the ban on their sport will be lifted V-E day.

While this announcement lacked an exact date, it nevertheless was accepted as being specific enough for racing to "get set" for the 1945 season.

Mr. Byrnes, director of war mobilization and reconversion, praised racing people for their cooperation during the shutdown since Jan. 1, 1945, and told reporters "they were just what you'd expect them to be.... good sports."

Montreal Royals Turn In Upset Win Over St. Mike's

Outplayed most of the way, the lightly regarded Quebec champions capitalized on every scoring opportunity, rapped in a goal a period. The powerful Ontario titlists failed to break into the scoring column until Bob Paul drove a shot past Howard Harvey in the Montreal net from short range in the second period.

Cliff Malone, nephew of Montreal's famed Bullet Joe Malone, set up the first goal when he passed to Jimmy O'Connor who slid to the ice and slipped the puck under Pat Boehmer from a sitting posture.

Jacques Belanger shook Don in the second period and Bussiere Bussiere on a similar play sank a backhand shot. Pierre Gadieux made it 3-1 from an almost impossible angle in the third.

BOSTON, April 2.—(AP)—With the Detroit - Boston playoff series tied at three games-all, acting president Mervyn (Red) Dutton of the National Hockey League last night announced Stanley Cup championship dates.

Toronto Maple Leafs qualified for the best-of-seven games cup competition Saturday night by eliminating the league championship Montreal Canadiens, four games to two.

If the Red Wings defeat the Bruins in their seventh and final game in Detroit Tuesday night, the first two Stanley Cup games will be played in Detroit on Thursday and Sunday, April 5 and 8. It then will shift to Toronto for two games, either Wednesday or Thursday, April 11 or 12 and Saturday, April 14. If needed, the fifth game will be played in Detroit Sunday, April 15, the sixth in Toronto Tuesday, April 17, and the seventh back in Detroit Thursday, April 19.

Boston's entrance in the Stanley Cup finals would complicate matters, for Bruins' rink will be unavailable to them after April 16.

Dutton said that if Bruins survive, they will open against Maple Leafs in Toronto Thursday and Saturday, April 5 and 7, and return to Boston for games Tuesday and Thursday, April 10 and 12. If a fifth game was required, it would be played in Toronto Saturday, April 14, Dutton said.

At present, however, Bruins' management is undecided about dates or sites for a sixth game. Since Toronto finished ahead of Bruins, Maple Leafs would dictate the time and place if the series went the seven-games limit.

Soccer Favorites Are Eliminated In First Round

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, April 2—(CP-Cable)—Mighty Aston Villa, winner of the league north football cup last season, was eliminated Saturday as the first round of cup ties was completed before tremendous holiday crowds buoyed by continued good news from the fighting fronts.

More than 35,000 at Wolverhampton cheered the home team to a 1-0 triumph over favored Aston Villa. That score, combined with a 2-1 Wolverhampton victory in Villa's grounds Friday, gave the Wanderers the total-goals round 3-1 and advanced them into the second round, starting next Saturday.

Sixteen cup matches Saturday attracted nearly 430,000 spectators. The largest crowd, 50,000, was at Everton where the home team was whitewashed by Liverpool, 1-0. The victory advanced Liverpool into the second round with an aggregate score of 2-0 on the basis of a 1-0 triumph at Liverpool Friday.

Derby County favored to win the cup now that Villa has been eliminated, overcame a one-goal advantage that Leicester ran up Friday to win at home, 2-0 and take the round 3-2 before 25,000 fans.

Large Crowds Attend Openings Of Coast Loop

LOS ANGELES, April 2—(AP)—The eight-team class AA Pacific Coast League officially inaugurated organized baseball's 1945 season under sunny skies in four California cities during the week-end. A crowd of 21,242 turned out for opening games Saturday with the biggest throngs filling the stands at Wrigley Field in Los Angeles.

The league traditionally ushers in the baseball year but this season opening games were advanced a week in an extension of league play because of wartime interest.

The day's openers saw Los Angeles, the 1942-44 pennant winners, take a 6-5 trimming from the San Francisco Seals at Angel's Wrigley Field before an overflow crowd of 16,000. Two of the Angels' hits were triples by Lou Novikoff, acquired from the Chicago Cubs.

Seattle, considered the league's strongest contender because of veteran pitching, soundly trounced the San Diego Padres, home club of 1944, by a 10-2 score in the Mexican border city.

Portland defeated Oakland 5-2 at Oakland and at Sacramento the Senators playing before 6,000 fans, turned back the Hollywood Stars 4-1.

Brigade Commander Inspects Workshop Unit in Edmonton

Col. E. R. Knight, V.D. made an inspection of the No. 1 (R) Bde. Workshop RCEME, on Friday last and expressed his satisfaction with the work that the various sections were carrying out.

He showed considerable interest in the cutaway model of a 7 cylinder supercharged aeroplane engine kindly loaned to the unit by W. Leigh Brintnell for use in demonstrating the principles of the internal combustion engine. This model enables students to see what actually goes on when the propeller is revolved and will prove of great value.

The Workshop classes, under the direction of Lt. R. Eby, were engaged in sectioning a 6 cylinder IHC truck engine for the same purpose.

A very considerable number of recruits have been enlisted during the past few weeks and there are still a few vacancies for youths who are mechanically inclined and who would like the chance to learn welding, running a lathe, etc.

A new training syllabus is now being drawn up for the ensuing year and it is the intention to concentrate on training particular to this branch of the service it is hoped to be able to include a number of night schemes as well as week-end exercises. We believe that the training syllabus will be found to be not only instructive but interesting and it is hoped that all members of these units will continue to attend these parades as it is only by each person attending all parades that the full benefit of the training syllabus can be obtained.

61st (R) FIELD BATTERY RCA

Sergeant Wilber Ottewell of Clover Bar commenced tests of training in the handling of the Bren machine gun. These tests are being completed in anticipation of range practice at Wainwright when spring arrives.

A film on explosives was shown Wednesday evening, giving information regarding the make-up of shell fillings and propellants. This was followed by short but very interesting talk by Maj. George Conquest of Westglen High School, linking up the information in the film with certain duties required of gunners, explaining the "why" of many requirements in regard to handling ammunition, and certain phases of gun drill.

Gunners E. J. Clark and T. J. Corbett were successful in passing gun-laying tests last week, and will be awarded layer's badges. Gun laying tests are continuing so as to qualify gunners for annual camp at Sarcee. The Battery will be at camp July 8 to 22 this year, and since the dates are definitely known it is expected that camp will be well attended.

Von Rundstedt Out For "Peace Move"

By WES GALLAGHER

WITH THE U.S. 9TH ARMY, April 2.—(AP)—Field Marshal Kesselring became German commander-in-chief in the west after Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt told Hitler further resistance was hopeless and that peace should be made at any price, according to information now available here.

This account adds:

Hitler decided to place Von Rundstedt under arrest immediately after the commander said the German armies no longer were capable of putting up an organized defence.

The appointment of Kesselring came as a compromise between Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, who wanted Field Marshal Walther Von Model as commander, and the army command, which had refused to consider Von Model.

Kesselring arrived at his new command with a complete SS (Elite Guard) staff, but it was not known whether they were there to help him or to watch him.

U.K. Universities Now Open to All

By JOHN DAUPHINEE

LONDON, April 2. — (CP) — Effective today Oxford, Cambridge and other great universities are open to any boy or girl of sufficient promise, regardless of his parents' means.

Drastic changes in Britain's education act were made by parliament at its last session and the new law has become operative.

Draft regulations issued by the government direct local education authorities "to give financial assistance and scholarships to enable pupils to proceed to courses without hardship to themselves or their parents of any educational facilities available."

This covers not only the universities but also the big public schools like Eton and Harrow and various technical-training institutes. Provision is made not only for children attending state-provided schools but for those whose parents may have sent their private schools but cannot afford to pay the cost of higher education.

Gen. Eisenhower Calls on Germans To Stop Fighting

PARIS, April 2.—(AP)—Eisenhower Saturday night called on German units surrounded to avoid unnecessary bloodshed and declared Allied troops were "driving ever more deeply into the very heart of Germany."

"Soldiers of the Wehrmacht!" said the supreme commander's order as broadcast to Germany, "to save yourselves further useless sacrifice and loss of life this is what you must do."

From that point on the order gave various instructions for surrendering in accordance with the rules of war.

Avert Coal Strike

WASHINGTON, April 2.—(AP)—A threatened national soft coal shutdown was averted yesterday—but with a 36-day limitation on the respite. John L. Lewis recommended to his United Mine Workers that they continue work for that period, despite expiration of their contract and a vote in favor of a strike.

Cpl. Alexander Roberts, army photographer from New York City, with the first scouting patrol to reach the scene which he described as "the most horrible I ever witnessed."

"I heard terrible screaming, crying and wailing which lasted into early morning," he said. "Finally we came into the clearing which was littered with dead and dying Japanese, so close together I could not walk between them without stepping on them.

MANY STRANGLED

"I saw at least 40 women and children strangled with strips of cloth torn from their tattered clothing. The only sounds came from little children who were wounded but not dead. In all there were nearly 200 individuals.

"There was one woman who had strangled herself by tying a thin rope around her neck, with the other end tied to a small tree. She had leaned forward, with her feet on the ground, pulling the rope tight about her neck until she strangled."

Japanese who recovered sufficiently to answer questions said Japanese soldiers told them the American would violate and torture the women and kill the men.

Mystery Radio Reports German Freedom Party

NEW YORK, April 2.—A German-language radio station, identifying itself as "Stuttgart, Vienna," went on the air last night with a new musical theme instead of the prescribed "Horst Wessel" song and declared "the National Socialist party is no more," Herbert Clark, Blue Network correspondent, reported in a broadcast from Allied headquarters in Paris.

The mysterious station announced the formation of a "Deutscher Freiheit" (German Freedom) party, Clark said. He described it as apparently representing a German group attempting to satisfy Allied demands for unconditional surrender.

Nazi "Werewolves" Formed to Fight On Inside the Reich

LONDON, April 2.—(AP)—The Nazi radio announced last night the formation of German "Werewolves" guerrillas to fight against the Allies and German collaborators—and appealed to "every man, woman and child" in occupied parts of Germany to give "wholehearted support to the Werewolves."

"The Werewolves," the broadcast said, "will make collaboration with the Allies impossible and finally drive them out of all German territories."

The name was taken from German mythology, which the Transocean Agency said, describes Werewolves as "wild beings who hide in the forests and pounce on all God's creatures."

Another broadcast admitted the war had "reached its climax" and said "the German Reich is exposed to the greatest danger in its entire history."

Help Comes Too Late

Dog Unable to Save Master

YORK, Pa., April 2—A seeing eye dog led a blind stranger over 2½ miles of country dirt roads Saturday in a vain effort to bring help to his dying master.

The dog's owner, Gayle Burlingame of Harrisburg, 53-year-old chief of the State Council for the Blind, was stricken at his cottage along the Susquehanna river while clearing away flood debris with two blind friends.

Burlingame's wife, also blind, after instructing one of the two friends to accompany the animal, turned the two toward nearby Wrightsville, and the dog and his blind companion set out for help.

After hearing the story, Dr. A. B. Hoover drove the two back to the cottage.

The dog's master was dead.

Legislature Reconvenes Here Tuesday

After a four-day Easter recess, members of the Legislature were returning to Edmonton Monday, for a final week's drive against unfinished business. The house opens at 3 p.m.

According to government leaders, it is hoped the assembly will prorogue late this week, Thursday or Friday.

Twenty-five bills remain to be dealt with by members. Five are ready for second reading, five require third reading, while 15 are ready for committee of the whole examination. Two legislative items before committee are the lengthy revised mines act which has provoked lively discussion, and several amendments at the hands of members, and amendments to the Liquor Control Act.

RE-AMENDED

The liquor act amendments, which dealt specifically with local option regulations as applied to enlarged municipal units, has been re-amended to order an eight-hour day for beer rooms. (At the present time, statutory beer room hours are from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., but wartime regulations call for an eight-hour day.)

It is understood efforts will be made to wipe out the eight-hour amendment when the bill goes before committee.

In addition to legislation, government and private members' resolutions will be dealt with by the assembly this week. One government motion is already on the order paper.

Congregations Fill Churches Easter Sunday

Churches of all denominations in all sections of the city were crowded on Sunday for services in celebration of Easter. Morning and evening services alike were largely attended, while a sunrise service at the Legislative Buildings grounds was attended by the congregations and choirs of several churches.

Weather which had been unsettled with some snow on Saturday cleared for Sunday, but it was cool and Sunday night the mercury dipped to 16 degrees above zero.

SPECIAL MUSIC

Special music was featured at all services, including excerpts from Handel's "Messiah," Stainer's "Crucifixion", Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" and other music associated with the season.

The cool weather tended to put a damper on the customary display of Easter finery, although there were some new hats and suits on view.

In the afternoon there were many pedestrians on Jasper avenue, 100 avenue and along the river bank, but here again comfort took precedence over mere display of new garments.

The fire department was kept busy over the week-end with several fires, and while the police department was given a fairly heavy amount of work, the occurrences mostly were of a minor nature.

Red Cross Drive Beats Last Year

A total of $287,454, an increase of $110,454 over last year's figure, was reported Monday by officials of the Northern Alberta Red Cross campaign committee as the annual drive for funds wound up. March 31 was the last day of the drive, although it was anticipated that further donations might be made.

Of the sum reported Monday, $178,159 came from city contributors, and $109,295 from citizens of rural areas. Largest donation in this latest list came from the Hudson's Bay Company, $1,000. Other donations exceeding $100 came from the W. H. Clark Lumber Company, Ltd., and employees, and Macdonald's Consolidated.

Find Farmer Dead At Table in Home

Halvar Rostad, Ohaton district farmer, was found dead at the table in his home about 3:10 p.m. Thursday, according to RCMP headquarters in Edmonton, Saturday. The man was said to have been in the act of eating when he suffered a fatal heart attack.

A bachelor, with no relatives in Canada, Mr. Rostad had not been seen for several days, and a neighbor, going to the farmhouse, discovered that he was dead. No inquest will be held.

City Is Centre New Military Flight Service

Always to the fore in pioneering aviation ventures of historic importance, Edmonton Monday was the centre of a new military flight operation of unusual significance when the Air Transport Command of the USAAF inaugurated a schedule of daily non-stop flights between Edmonton and Minneapolis, with four-motored aircraft.

Clipping two hours from the time for the same flight made with C-47 twin engine equipment in each direction the huge Skymaster making the first flight, left Edmonton airport at 2:20 a.m. and had completed the 1,100 air miles to Minneapolis in just about five hours flat.

Because the prevailing winds are in a north-south direction one hour more is required for the return trip, the plane leaving Minneapolis at 9 a.m. after a two-hour layover and arriving here at about 3 p.m.

There were 29 persons, including the crew of five aboard the ship on its first flight, in addition the ship carried one ton of mail and 1,500 pounds of assorted freight.

Lt. Col. Homer E. Fackler, director of operations at the Edmonton air base, was pilot and Lt. D. E. Billings was co-pilot.

Additional crewmen were a radio operator, a flight clerk and flight engineer.

The flight is the forerunner of vast operation of four-motored planes proceeding between Edmonton, Anchorage, Seattle and Minneapolis that should be in full operations by May 1.

Police Investigations into the entry of Royal Dyers and Cleaners, 8843 118 avenue, discovered early Sunday morning, revealed that nothing had been taken from the premises, police stated. Entry into the building was made after an entire rear window had been removed.

Many Workers Leaving Posts In Northland

Evacuation of both Canadian and American civilian personnel employed in connection with operations of the Canol pipeline at Norman Wells is drawing to a close, Canadian Pacific Air Lines officials stated Monday.

The great oil development project, constructed by the U.S. Army to provide an emergency source of oil and gasoline for Alaskan bases, officially closed down as far as American activity was concerned on Monday.

MANY FLOWN OUT

For the last month or more CPA planes have been moving personnel out of the Norman Wells area and about 300 have been flown to Edmonton so far.

About one more month will be required to complete the evacuation, with one plane making one round trip flight each week to and from Edmonton.

Imperial Oil Ltd. personnel are not affected so far by the abandonment of the Canol project and are remaining at Norman Wells.

During the height of construction more than 3,000 persons were employed at Norman Wells and vicinity.

Final Respects Paid at Rites For Robt. Hughes

Hundreds of Edmonton residents attended the funeral Saturday afternoon of Sgt. Robert Hughes, city police traffic department head, who died in hospital last Wednesday evening. A large fly attended service was held at the Foster and McGarvey funeral home at 2:30 p.m.

Led by a motorcycle operated by Constable L. B. Nicholson, the funeral procession was headed by 36 members of the city police force, following which came 10 members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in scarlet uniforms and 12 members of the city fire department.

OTHERS ATTENDING

In attendance also, were Chief Constable Reg. Jennings, Deputy Chief Alex Riddell, police sergeants and inspectors of the various departments, and members of the Canadian Legion.

Arriving at Edmonton Cemetery, a Canadian Legion service was conducted by Jack Jones, while two buglers sounded the Last Post. Burial took place in the Soldiers' Plot.

The late Sgt. Hughes, who celebrated his 50th birthday on March 16, was born in Northern Ireland, fought with the British Army in the First World War, and came to Canada in 1920. He joined the Edmonton city police force in December of that year, serving in various departments until he was appointed traffic sergeant April 12, 1944.

He became ill while on duty last Tuesday and was taken home. On Wednesday he was removed to hospital and operated on that same night. He died about two hours after the operation.

Pallbearers were Constables A. E. Woodward, J. H. Cookson, Gerald Black, Ross D. Campbell, E. Macrae and Kenneth Murray.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Which of Canada's comparatively few wartime shortages have you missed the most?

THE ANSWERS

MRS. R. T. WHITE, housewife: I realize we've been very lucky in comparison to most of the rest of the world but I have missed being able to get the staple food supplies I want. Perhaps we've been eating more healthfully but it takes a lot of ingenuity and imagination to substitute for rich cakes, laden with fruit, nuts and coconut, and a lot of butter rather than a hardship to try to stretch the butter and sugar ration to cover your family's desires.

BARBARA BROWN, stenographer: The biggest difficulty I've had has been with clothes and stockings. A working girl doesn't have much chance to shop around and clothes don't last as long as they used to. Sometimes the stocking situation is really a problem.

HAROLD BILLINGS, salesman: I guess the thing I've missed most has been lots of gasoline. I really used to enjoy being able to hop in my car and go any place I wanted to, but I'm not kicking 'cause I realize we've been the luckiest people in the world.

J. H. Thorogood Heads Rifle Club

J. H. Thorogood was named president of the South Edmonton Rifle Club at the organization meeting held following the final smoker of the South Edmonton Veterans' Volunteer Reserve. The Rifle Club membership is largely made up of members of the VVR. Activities of the club's organization concluded officially Saturday.

Other officers are: vice-president, Ray Hagel; secretary, E. W. B. Shaver; treasurer, D. W. Goodman; range officer, C. Hutchinson. Chairman of the rifle club building committee is Arthur McKay. The prospective women members of the club were invited to name a second vice-president. The next meeting of the club will be held Monday at 8 p.m., at the former battalion rifle range.

Art Show Opens At the University

An exhibition of water-color paintings is now on display at the University of Alberta on the second floor of the arts building and will continue till Saturday, April 7. The artist is Murray MacDonald.

The subjects show considerable variety, the compositions are decisive and pleasing, while the treatment is crisp and adequate but not overdone. There is plenty of contrast and color. There seems to be a deliberate attempt in some instances to escape a conventional realistic style, which is achieved principally by emphasizing rhythm.

A small area around Sudbury, Ontario, supplies 85 per cent of the world's nickel.

BACK IN CITY.—Cpl. Marjorie Smith of the CWAC recruiting staff in Edmonton who has returned to duty here after two months at MD 13 headquarters in Calgary. Three sisters and one brother of the Smith family, 10313 124 street, are in the services.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Cheating Women Are Traitors, Unpopular

Gallivanting Wives and Fiancees Breaking Hearts of Men Serving Overseas; These Women Not Human

DEAR MISS DIX: Recently I have had the opportunity to talk to men just back from overseas after two or three years of living under horrible conditions. Some of these men have been wounded and are in hospitals. Some are just back on a thirty day furlough, after which they will return to the battle front.

They told me many tragic stories of the experiences they have been through, but the most heartbreaking ones were about the men who came back from hell holes to find letters from their wives asking them for divorces because they had fallen in love with other men, or letters from other people telling them that their wives and sweethearts were being unfaithful to them. I hated to believe these stories, but the fighting men had me stopped when they cited actual cases of infidelity of which they personally knew.

Won't you tell these girls what they are doing to the very souls of our men? Won't you make them realize that they are tearing to shreds the very things our boys are fighting for — their ideals and dreams, their hopes for a decent, safe and comfortable future? Someone must tell them these things in a way they can thoroughly understand, and you seem to be the logical one to do it. E. M.

Answer: I have written columns and columns and columns telling young wives and engaged girls that when they were running around having good times while their husbands and fiances were fighting to make safe homes for them, that they were just as much traitors as any Quisling who ever betrayed his country for gain. I have told them over and over and over again that they were made of poor stuff if they could not give up a few dances and a little lovemaking for the sake of the men who were risking their lives and suffering every danger and hardship for them.

I have urged all young women who had men at the front to remember that those are hard times in which their husbands and sweethearts are living under abnormal conditions. Their lives are filled with danger and hardships. They are separated from the women they love by vast distances. They have much time in which to brood over what is happening at home. They hear many weird stories of unfaithful wives and girl friends. And it is inevitable that they should become suspicious and wonder if they are being betrayed by the women they trust as so many other men are.

So this makes it imperative that the women at home should be far more discreet than they would need to be if their husbands and sweethearts were at home and could know that they were being true to them. If G.I. Joe was taking his wife to a party, he would not think it wrong for her to dance with other men. In fact, he would be proud of her being the belle of the ball. But when he is a thousand miles away the thought of her going to parties while he is lying in a foxhole and of her dancing with other men tears him to pieces with jealousy.

But there isn't a wife nor a girl in the length and breadth of the land who doesn't know this, and who is not perfectly aware of what a cruel and dastardly thing she does when she adds the tortures of jealousy and suspicion, and even of knowing that he has been betrayed, to the sufferings that the man who want to tell.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

I believe most acne would be prevented if the young person (1) gets sufficient exposure to sunshine or skyshine the year around, (2) avoids soap and other irritants, and (3) uses only oil for cleaning the skin of face.

The finest skin oil I can recommend is teel or til oil, benne oil, sesame oil (it is known by all these names), which seems to remain oily and rarely or never clogs the orifices of the sebaceous ducts, the "pores", as many nostrums do although they purport to "beautify." Not only for young persons to use instead of drying and irritating soaps and creams for the face, but for daily application to the old skin too, plain sesame oil or benzoinated sesame oil. If your druggist knows how to prepare it, is a skin care aid that has been highly praised by many users.

Do not misunderstand — I recommend this skin oil not as a remedy for acne, but only as a preventive and as a fine cosmetic agent to keep any skin clean, smooth, soft and clear.

The treatment of acne is given in a pamphlet "Acne" available on request if you send a stamped envelope bearing your address. A clipping of this item is not a request.

There have been several favorable reports in the medical journals recently on the favorable effects of vitamin A treatment of chronic indurated acne. Patients take two 25,000 unit capsules (total of 50,000 units) with or after breakfast and with or after dinner every day for several months. I do not believe this is so effective for the acne of young persons. It is especially helpful for the non-suppurative, hard papular type of acne or skin rash in older adults, and for "nutmeg grater", "alligator hide", excessively dry and "dirty" looking skin, of which many women complain.

I hope what I have said here about the relation of excessive consumption of refined carbohydrate to acne will not be interpreted as a ban against a reasonable amount of candy, sweets, ice cream, sweetened beverages, cake, pie, cookies etc., for the young ones. Remember, I deplore only the excessive intake of cheat-food — pure starch or sugar without the minerals and vitamins that grow with it and were intended by nature for adequate nutrition. If the ordinary everyday diet of the young person, yes and the old one, were made up wholly or even in the main of natural, unadulterated foods, probably very little of these cheat-foods would be desired by the average individual. In fact it is a common experience of people who for one purpose or another follow a restricted diet which is properly supplemented with adequate rations of vitamins, to discover presently that they no longer crave or want as much cheat-food as they have been accustomed to taking. That is a practical illustration of what satisfying hidden hunger means.

TALKS TO SELF

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a daughter 17 years of age who is a wonderful girl, but she has one fault and that is, she is always talking to herself. I can't understand this at all. Please give me some advice as to what to do, or explain what is the matter.

ANSWER: Perhaps your daughter is like the man who said he talked to himself because he enjoyed talking to an intelligent man and he liked to hear an intelligent man talk. If such is not the case with your daughter, maybe she is just the victim of a bad habit she has fallen into and of which she should cure herself before she does something she doesn't

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

When a child has been dry at night for some time and then there is a period of renewed bed-wetting, it is probable that this is of nervous rather than physical origin.

Sometimes an illness, during which time the parent has been unusually attentive, will keep the child harnessed to the ways of his illness rather than content to display control again. It may be enough to explain to the child that well persons assume responsibility for their behavior and that this is one of the benefits of being well again.

It may be that the mother will have to be patient and keep reminding the child of the new goal again. He should be given some new privileges to balance the responsibility he is now assuming and thus make it more concrete to him. The privilege of staying up a half hour later, now that he is well, will help him to see that he is also expected to keep his bed dry, now that he is well.

A new baby in the family is often upsetting to a young child's newly-acquired toilet habits. He finds the baby getting loving attention even when he is wet and he feels that he ought to be able to win the same delighted notice. When he gets nothing but criticism and scolding he feels himself to be an outcast, unloved by the family for perpetrating the same behavior the other child performs with impunity.

Again there must be new privileges, as an older child, to match the continued responsibility of being a controlled individual. He must think of himself as being one of the "big folks" and ready, when it is hand. He won the opening lead with the ace of spades, cashed the ace and king of diamonds and discarded his losing spade.

Although most of the stones we are acquainted with will sink to the bottom when thrown into the water, the fact is that not all stones do this. Some are lighter than water. In Hawaii there is a native volcanic rock found in abundance which is so light that it floats on water like a piece of wood. There are other rock formations that look like human hair and wool—they are so porous.

Seven of hearts was led from dummy. West played low and Casner put on the ten. Now, it is true that if he had finessed the eight, there would have been no problem, but that would be a double dummy play.

East won and led the queen of spades, which Casner trumped with a heart. The queen of hearts was then led. West won with the ace. The ten of spades was returned, declarer trumping with the five of hearts. Now the jack of clubs was finessed and lost to the king.

West returned a club, which was won in dummy, and now diamonds were led until West was forced to trump. This allowed the declarer to over-trump with the eight spot and pick up the nine with the queen.

Noted London Editor to Speak To Women's Canadian Club

The Women's Canadian Club will hold an afternoon meeting in the Macdonald hotel at 3 p.m. on Thursday. The guest speaker will be Mr. Alan Pitt Robbins, news Editor of the London Times.

Alan Robbins comes of a family which for two generations has been closely associated with journalism in Great Britain. Both his father, who for many years was the London correspondent of the Birmingham Post, and his uncle, who was the manager of the great news-agency, the Press Association received the honor of knighthood for their services to journalism, and Mr. Robbins' three brothers have been at some time engaged in the journalistic profession.

Alan Robbins began his journalistic career in Leeds, where he worked for four and one half years. He was then for a few months in the London office of the Birmingham Post, but since June, 1909 he has been a member of the staff of The Time. One of his first engagements as a Times reporter was to attend the trial of Dr. Crippen at the Old Bailey.

During the First World War he served in the army, and on returning to The Times he became its first film critic, and then news editor for a short spell before in 1923 he was appointed parliamentary correspondent, a position which he held for 15 years. He twice visited Canada and the United States with Ramsay Macdonald, when prime minister, and in 1932 he was one of the representatives of The Times at the Ottawa conference, afterwards making an extensive tour of Canada and the United States.

In 1938, at the invitation of the late Geoffrey Dawson, then the editor, he returned to Printing House Square, as news editor, a position which he still holds.

FAMILY RECORD

He has always taken a deep interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of journalism in general, and the newspaperman in particular. Like his father and his eldest brother, who died last October, he has served as president of the Institute of Journalists, a family record which has never been equalled in the history of British journalism. He is now treasurer of the Institute and is also vice-president of the Newspaper Press fund.

The president, Mrs. Chester D. Gainer, will preside at the meeting.

Minute Make-Ups

Want to be a model? It's fun but it is also a lot of work. When the photographer says, "hold that pose", it puts a strain on the muscles and is very tiring. So a model must have plenty of rest and must watch her diet and get her vitamins and minerals. She must also include a certain amount of exercise. After it all adds up to keeping that clear complexion and the starlight in her eyes!

YOU DON'T THINK NEXT WINTER WILL BE VERY COLD?

Western miners must be kept working during the Spring and Summer months or there will not be enough coal for everyone next winter.

Do not be misled because the last two winters have been abnormally mild. Remember the winter of 1942-43, and the exceptionally cold weather in the East this winter.

The only sure way is to protect yourself by seeing your dealer at once and ordering enough coal to last all through the winter—no matter how cold it may be.

Calgary Highlanders Fight Grim Battle In Hochwald Forest

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH CANADIAN ARMY IN GERMANY, April 2.—(CP)—The Calgary Highlanders went into action on the first day of the 1st Canadian Army's late winter offensive and fought in the last battle of the Wesel triangle southeast of Xanten. They probably had as prolonged a period in the line as any unit in the army.

When the offensive began Feb. 8 the Calgarians and the Regiment de Maisonneuve, serving temporarily in the British 30th Corps, attacked and captured Wyler on the Nijmegen-Kranenburg road—the first German towns of any size to fall to the Canadians.

Then the Highlanders pushed through captured Cleve to the lay-back positions of the Siegfried line to the south. In thick woods near Moyland, between Cleve and Calcar, the battalion had a fierce fight when it went to the aid of the Regina Rifles and Royal Winnipeg Rifles.

LAUNCH BIG ATTACK

Feb. 26 the 2nd Canadian Corps launched its big attack southeast of Calcar in the second phase of the Rhine offensive, the Highlanders passed through the all-Ontario brigade to make a frontal assault on the Hochwald forest defence line.

Before the forest were lines of zig-zag trenches and farmhouses defended by German paratroops. The ground was muddy and it was heavy going to advance against these positions. Rocket guns were employed against the Highlanders and snipers had even battalion headquarters thoroughly covered.

But the regiment burst through and was the first Canadian unit into the Hochwald forest, on the evening of Feb. 27, a few hours before the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders from Hamilton, Ont., and tanks of the South Alberta Regiment broke into the corridor farther south.

GRIM FOREST BATTLE

The forest battle was grim. For five days the Calgaries fought the Germans practically from tree to tree. One heavy counter-attack was made, but the battalion fired every weapon it had and forced the enemy back. In the Hochwald it took at least 200 prisoners, including five officers.

Maj. George Stott of Calgary was one company commander and another was Maj. Alex Keller of Winnipeg, who won the Military Medal as a corporal with the Regiment at Dieppe and the Military Cross at Hoogerheide in southwest Holland. Capt. Cliff Keatley of Edmonton and Capt. Bill Lister of Medicine Hat, Alta., were other officers in the thick of the fighting.

Maj. Bruce McKenzie of Medicine Hat is the second-in-command and Capt. Charlie Dore of Victoria the adjutant. Lieut. Bill Powell of Calgary and Sgt. Ernest Baker of Berwyn, Alta., are on battalion headquarters staff and the regimental sergeant-major is Vince Bowen of Pincher Creek, Alta.

The company sergeant-majors had a big job to do when officers were lost. Outstanding leadership was given by CSM's Jim Doherty of London, Ont., H. O. Larson of Stettler, Alta., and Harry Baker of Medicine Hat.

The medical officer is Capt. A. H. Grenz of Lipton, Sask., and the padre Capt. C. P. Bishop of Pincher Creek.

Among the other ranks, Scout Corporal Frank Potts of Lethbridge, Alta., led a number of daring patrols. Operating alone he occupied the village of Till northwest of Calcar—the first Canadian into that place by the Rhine.

After the Hochwald battle, the Calgaries went into the corridor, which cut the forest in two, and took over a woods at the eastern exit where the enemy had previously blocked Canadian break-out attempts.

Then came the Xanten show. The Highlanders, on foot, advanced through the southern edge of Xanten after other Canadians had taken the town and under heavy fire pressed on towards Birten, three miles southwest.

Making a lightning thrust they hooked around Birten and caught the crack enemy paratroopers off base. Some paratroopers were captured in bed. German ammunition carts also were captured as they drove into the Highlanders' positions unknowingly.

"A big feature of our share in the Rhineland offensive was that our casualties have not been heavy", said Lieut. Powell.

"Leadership in the battalion was fine all the way and our battle plans were carried out with very few hitches. Some of the actions were regular set pieces".

Plan Centralize Civic Activities

Centralization of many civic activities in the New Market Building, 102 avenue and 100 street, will take place in the near future, according to Maxwell C. Dewar, city architect, who is now engaged in the locating of these departments in the building recently purchased from the Edmonton Motors Co.

The west wing of the building has been rented to the Dominion government to house the family allowances headquarters for Alberta. The centre of the building is being reserved for a Dominion department now negotiating with the city commissioners.

In the east wing of the building many of the decentralized civic activities will be grouped. The child welfare clinic, now in the Labor Hall, will be moved to this wing. The Edmonton Horticultural Society, also located in the Labor Hall, will be given accommodation as will the Red Cross office formerly located at the Civic Block.

The museum of arts, now located on the fourth floor of the Civic Block, will be moved to the east wing of the building, and the civic relief department, on the sixth floor of the Civic Block, will be given space in the portion vacated by the museum. Additional space will be provided for the city health and the comptroller's departments in the location now housing the museum.

The city engineer's department will take over the space now occupied by the civic relief department.

It is understood that temporary quarters will be provided for the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council pending the construction of a Labor Temple, or the renting of suitable quarters. The Trades and Labor Council will have to vacate their present premises immediately as its demolition will start next Monday to clear the land for the addition to the central telephone exchange.

HOW ALLIES CAN ISOLATE NAZIS' "LAST DITCH"—Junction between fast-flying Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army in the west and Russia's First and Second Ukrainian armies in the east would cut off southern Germany, where Nazi leaders and remnants of their legions are reported to be fleeing for possible "last stand". Map above shows how junction of the two armies would effect the cutoff and also how other sections of the Third are striking for possible junctions with Allied forces to the north and in Italy.

Chicago Futures Score Advances

WINNIPEG, April 2—(CP)—Domestic trade highlighted trading today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with traders taking approximately 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat to load boats expected to dock shortly at the lakehead.

Fair advances were scored in rye futures during the session, influenced by a three-cent rise at Chicago. The May and October options reached new seasonal highs of $1.36⅛ and $1.18¾ respectively.

The day's close was ⅝-3⅛ cent a bushel higher with May at $1.36.

Local Produce

BUTTER PRICES

No. 1, 34½; No. 2, 32½; No. 3, 30½.

CREAM PRICES

Prices for cream delivered to Edmonton creameries: Special grade, 44; No. 1, 43; No. 2, 37; off grade, 32.

All prices include government bonus of 10c to farmers.

EGG PRICES

Dealers now paying to country shippers: A large, 30; A medium, 28; A pullet, 21; grade B, 24; grade C, 18-19.

Wholesale to retail: A large, 37; A medium, 35; A pullet, 29; grade B, 31; grade C, 27.

Retail to consumers: A large, 44; A medium, 42; A pullet, 36; grade B, 38; grade C, 32.

The most important development on this egg market during the past week was an increase of 1c per dozen to producers on ungraded values for A large and A medium, and a 2c to 3c per dozen increase in paying prices for grade C. The market outlet for eggs is, of course, unchanged so that this increase is the result of competitive business. Receipts show an increase of 15 per cent. from the preceding week, and in value are 20 per cent. in excess of the corresponding period for 1944. Indications are that the peak week of production may be earlier than last year, which was April 22nd to May 6th. Quality continues to run high to top grades with slightly more soiled shells in evidence as a result of spring thaws. Six cars grade A large and medium were exported in shell to the British ministry, five carlots A large and A medium were oiled and placed in storage for fall shipment to the British ministry, and three carlots of A pullets and Bs were transferred to the local drying plant. Shipments to northern projects were lighter in volume than the preceding week.

POULTRY PRICES

The poultry market continues quiet with light arrivals of fowl and some late chicken. There was no carlot movement of frozen stocks, and stocks of chicken especially are well cleaned out. Only a very few broilers are as yet in evidence. Paping and selling prices on dressed poultry continue very firm as quoted. Dealers are guaranteeing for broilers 2 to 3½ lbs. dressed milkfed A 30c, milkfed B 28c, grade B 26c and grade C 22c, less 6c per head as a killing charge. Quotations on live No. 1 fowl remain unchanged at over 5 lbs. 17c, 4 to 5 lbs. 15c, No. 2 fowl 10c, No. 1 chicken over 4 lbs. 19c, under 4 lbs. 17c, No. 2 15c.

Air Command Here Observes Birthday

A parade of all personnel at Northwest Air Command headquarters and the Edmonton station is being held Monday afternoon to commemorate the 21st anniversary of the founding of the RCAF.

It was on April 1, 1924, that His Majesty The King approved of the organization of the Royal Canadian Air Force. For some years previous to that time Canada's air force was progressively known as the Canadian Air Board, and the Canadian Air Force. At that time and for some years after the approval of the RCAF the force was under the direction of the army.

Complete autonomy came in 1926. Group Capt. David Harding, OBE, AFC, commanding officer of the Edmonton station, will review the parade.

Main feature of the ceremony will be the hoisting of the RCAF ensign on the station flag pole.

A sailor and an airman, evidently without hopes of ever seeing the orient, could not resist taking some chopsticks as souvenirs from a local cafe, about 1 a.m. Sunday, according to city police. 700 Teachers In Attendance At Convention

A roll call at 10 a.m., brought approximately 700 teachers to their feet Monday when the 28th annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' Association opened in the Macdonald hotel. The conference will continue through Wednesday night when installation of officers will draw the three-day deliberations to a close.

Opening items on the agenda called for a review of the minutes of the 1944 meeting, and the striking of committees for finance, steerage, scrutineers and publicity.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

The report of the president, C. Sansom, dealt largely with the need for "great improvement in the status of education in this province." Mr. Sansom told the teachers, present from many of Alberta's most outlying school districts, that the university's assuming the function of pre-service and in-service training of teachers was more than likely to turn out to be little more than a change in organization unless it was accompanied by other reforms.

Among the reforms he proposed was a graduate series of minimum wages based on years of training, so that students entering the faculty of education at the university to prepare for teaching, would be assured in advance that their salaries, even in one-room schools, would be proportionate to the length and expense of their initial training.

He declared that such a system would call for some fundamental changes in the point of view regarding rural education, one of these being that rural teaching be regarded as a provincial, rather than rural function.

RAPS INDIFFERENCE

He expressed astonishment at what he called the apparent indifference of rural people concerning their children's education. Declaring that agrarian influence in the Alberta Legislature is strong "by whatever name the government is known", he asked why agriculture did not pull its weight in the interests of rural education.

Mr. Sansom urged all farm groups to descend on the legislative members and ask for a showdown on the matter of rural education.

He described improvements made in past years as only first steps in the direction of putting well-educated and carefully-trained teachers in charge of comfortable and well-equipped rural schools, community schools and diversified high schools as called for in a modern system of rural education.

John W. Barnett, general secretary of the association, reviewed the Alberta teachers' organization, sub-locals, research, the Easter week holiday, pensions, relations with trustees, meetings of the executive, the ATA magazine, association representatives, rehabilitations of teachers, the Teaching Profession Act, financial year, continuity of service of teachers, analysis of school divisions, and the salary question.

63 CHARTERED LOCALS

Mr. Barnett stated there are now 63 chartered ATA locals in the province. He expressed dissatisfaction that the number of sub-locals had declined.

Other highlights of his review: relations between the ATA and the Alberta School Trustees Association were steadily improving; the ATA magazine was being successfully operated as a co-operative activity; amendments have been recently made to the order-in-council regarding privileges for veteran teachers to take undergraduate, graduate and post-graduate work, and that it may be assumed that henceforth the regulations will be interpreted more homogenously and more advantageously by responsible officials throughout the Dominion.

Under present circumstances, the only immediate hope for teachers, was the raising substantially of both minimum and maximum salary; and other matters.

The teachers were to be officially welcomed to the city Monday afternoon by Major Fry.
